Theodore Roosevelt, who has just arrived home from the jungles of Brazil, had a good deal to do with building the Panama Canal. He is not eager to "sully the national honor," in the words of England's friends, or back out of any national obligation. In an interview in Brazil, and which he now confirms, he says:

> We are asked to surrender our rights in the canal we built with our money, so as, forsooth, some other nation may play on our behalf the game we are too weak to play ourselves.
>
> I have no question that we have a legal as well as an unquestionable moral right to exempt genuine coast traffic from tolls.

Here is a brief statement by Senator O'Gorman, a good type of American:

> This bill is misnamed. It should be entitled "A bill to exalt British commerce and destroy American shipping," or "A bill to expand the glory of the British Empire and humiliate the United States."

Do YOU know of any reason why England should dictate to the United States as to the management of the canal built and paid for by the United States? Write to your United States Senator and tell him what you think.

Mr. Mellen's Confession of Ignorance.

It Shows How Railroads Ought Not to Be Run—It Also Proves That Mr. McReynolds Must Not Stop the New Haven Investigation

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company.

Without the story that Charles S. Mellen, former President of the New Haven, has told to the Interstate Commerce Commission, the victims of New Haven crookedness might never have known that the president of this great system, with his sixty thousand dollar salary, was of little more importance in the management of the line than the dummy officers who were hired to sign a few checks.

Mr. Mellen's story is more than interesting. It is illuminating. Because of it a way is opened to find out just what actually happened in the long series of criminal manipulations that led to the robbing of the stockholders and the wrecking of the road.

No one who has read what the former president said in Washington will question the wisdom of calling him to testify, even if thereby he does gain immunity.

AND IT WAS THIS TESTIMONY OF MELLEN'S—THIS STORY WHICH LETS DAYLIGHT INTO THE DARK CORNERS OF NEW HAVEN GRAFT—THAT MR. M'REYNOLDS, ATTORNEY-GENERAL OF THE UNITED STATES, DID HIS BEST TO SUPPRESS BY FIGHTING THE CALLING OF MELLEN.

From what has been brought out, the people feel that they can safely trust the Interstate Commerce Commission and Mr. Folk, who is conducting the investigation for them.

The Commission has found a way to bring out the truth, even though they did not have half the power that Mr. McReynolds possessed.

The Commission has uncovered dozens of trails that will lead to living men, as well as to graveyards. And Mr. McReynolds' fear that they will give somebody immunity seems to be entirely without grounds.

The people do not feel, however, that they can trust Mr. McReynolds any longer.

He has had the New Haven prosecution in his hands for fourteen months and has failed to do anything.

He fought the calling of the one witness who could bring out the truth, and he is now fighting against a further hearing by the Commission.

This is the time, if the time ever is to be, to bring the living offenders in the New Haven rascality to justice.

It is clear that Mr. McReynolds either is unwilling or unable to bring them to justice.

Therefore Mr. McReynolds must give place to a man who will do the work he is unwilling or unable to do. And the sooner the Administration discovers this fact, and acts upon it, the sooner will there be an opportunity to make such an example of the New Haven criminals that the looting of railroads will end in this country forever.

More Truth Than Poetry

The Diary of a Railroad President

MAY 1—The Old Man called me up on the telephone and asked me if I wanted to be president of a railroad. "Sure I do," I told him. "You won't ask any questions about how it's run, will you?" he said. "Nary question," I told him. "You won't expect anybody to report to you—general managers, superintendents, switchmen or engine wipers, or anybody like that?" "Of course not; why should I?" "All right. Your salary will be fifty thousand a year. Go on the job."

"Say, Boss," I said, "couldn't you make it sixty thousand?" "Well," he said, "maybe I will, if you don't try to find out too much about the road."

May 7—So I am president of a great railroad! Gee, but this is a proud position.

Yesterday I saw a brakeman chopping up a box car and piling it neatly by the track. "What are you doing that for?" I asked. "Fuel for locomotives," he said. "Saves buying coal. Who are you?"

"I'm the president," I replied. "Then my advice to you is to mind your own business," he said. "I was told by the Boss if you butted in to kick you off the right of way." Of course, I didn't want to appear meddlesome, although it seemed to me that burning box cars was an expensive way to get fuel. So I walked haughtily away.

May 14—The directors held a meeting this afternoon, and I found out about it, so I went in to New York, to the Boss' office, where it was held. The doorboy asked me who I was, and I told him I was the president.

"Only directors is admitted," he said, and shut the door in my face.

I stood out there a while and by and by the office boy came out and sent me across the street for a box of cigars and a case of champagne. I had an awful bad half hour with the Boss because I got the wrong kind, and a worse one when he found I'd smoked one of the cigars. It was a very humiliating scene.

It's a fine position, being a railroad president, and I'm proud of it, but sometimes I wish the Boss had a more equable disposition.

May 20—Met two of the directors coming out of the treasury with eleven million dollars in a bag. Asked them what they were going to do with it, and they said: "Not that it's any of your business, but we're going to buy a couple of trolley cars and a tugboat."

"Isn't that a lot of money to pay for those things?" I inquired. "Sure it is," they said, "that's why we're doing it. We own the trolley cars and the tugboat, you know, and the widows and orphans own the money."

Then they gave me a few dollars and told me to go buy some politicians so they could get a franchise to run the trolley cars over.

I don't know much about railroading, but I'm learning.

December 12—I've had this job six years now, and it's a proud position. But every time anybody gets killed on the line the survivors blame me.

Yesterday I suggested to a director that if they'd get a couple of new engines and put in a good piece of track here and there they wouldn't have so many accidents. "Forget it," they said. "How could we keep on building new roads and new legislatures to let us run them if we did that?"

"But they blame me for the wrecks," I insisted. "Tell them to blame the engineer," they said. "Now run away and don't bother us."

January 1—Yesterday a director wheeled a perambulator into my office with a couple of two-year-old twins in it. Both of them were sucking lollypops when they weren't howling. "Here," I said, "take those kids out of here. This ain't a day nursery."

"Don't get funny," said the director. "These boys are secretary and treasurer of the new company. You're job is to write out the checks for them to sign."

February 12—Yesterday the Boss sent for me. "Say, you," he said, "there's going to be an investigation of this thing, and you may be called. What will you tell them?"

"What can I tell them, sir?" I asked.

"Why you bonehead," he stormed, "tell them the truth!"

"What do you mean, the truth?" I said.

"That you don't know anything about the road," he thundered, and called the bouncer.

March 13—I am not a railroad president any more. The Boss called me in this afternoon and said: "You've been finding out a lot about this road. I hear you quoted a freight rate to Fall River last week and came within ten dollars a ton of being right. You are fired."

Then he added, more kindly: "Let me give you a pointer. The next time anybody makes you president of a railroad, you draw the salary in advance and go to Madagascar to live. That's the only way an inquisitive man like you can hold the job."

I'm not a railroad president now, as I just mentioned. But it sure was a proud position while I had it.

An Englishman's Letters

From J. Percy Smith-Brown, Esquire, Hotel Pazazza, Boston, to H. Ttherington Bellingham-Cholomondly (pronounced Chumly), The Towers, Chorlton-cum-Hardy, Cirencester, near Stoke-Pannington the Lesser, Hants, England.

DEAR OLD TOP — Perish me pink, old chap, if this isn't an extraordinary country.

It appears a lot of their jolly marines landed in some bally Mexican port and captured it in jig-time. Some of the marines were shot and a quite considerable number of Mexicans. But the government says there is no war with Mexico.

All I can say is that if this is their idea of peace, I should jolly well dislike to have any serious trouble with them.

I had a dashed exasperating experience in the hotel last night, due to the stupidity of one of the bell-hoppers, as they call the youngsters over here.

One of the bell-hoppers—you see, I am picking up the bally lingo pretty quickly—came through the cafe, shouting, "Mr. Brown. Mr. Brown. Letter for Mr. Brown. Mr. Brown."

The boy repeated this about twenty times, and then rudely approached me and said, "Aren't you Mr. Brown?"

"No," I replied, "I am Mr. Smith-Brown."

"Then your last name is Brown, ain't it?"

"Not at all," I told him; "my last name is Smith-Brown."

"Which is?" asked the young bounder, "Smith or Brown?"

"Neither," I answered.

"Why, you just said it was Smith-Brown," persisted the impertinent young scoundrel.

"My good young man," said I, "my last name is not Smith, nor is it Brown."

"Why, you just said"——

But I turned wearily away. The people over here are a bally lot of fatheads, I assure you, old man.

I was out with my friend, Vincent Breezer, yesterday. I mentioned him in my last letter. For an American, he is really quite presentable, and is not quite impervious to a joke.

We were sitting in a cafe together when Breezer nudged me and said: "Hey, did you make that guy—he gave you the once over."

Extraordinary thing, eh? to call a bloke a guy—however, I said: "What do you mean, my dear fellow; nobody gave me anything."

"Sure, he did," replied Breezer. "I was watching him give you the double O."

"I tell you nobody gave me anything," said I.

"But I saw him," declared Breezer.

Then I went right off the deep end. "I tell you now," said I, "nobody gave me anything, and further, I dashed well wouldn't take anything from a bally stranger in any event."

That settled the blooming fathead. I fancy nobody could give me anything without my knowing it, eh, old chap? I wasn't jolly well born yesterday, you know.

Now, dear old fellow, I dislike to remind you of this, but your dashed curt refusal to put up a measly couple of pounds on the Derby favorite for me compels me to recall the day you left your bally purse at home and asked me to lend you sixpence. Did I refuse you? Blankety blank well, not I told you that if I had theooff I should jolly well let you have it. After that, dear old man, you can't refuse me this trifling favour. Your old pal.

The Power of Mental Science—Parents Ought to First Find What Their Children Can Best Do, Then Give Them the Benefit of Their Encouragement.

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company.

THERE was a woman of limited mental powers, who listened to lectures on Mental Science and the power of Mind, and she decided to develop her child of ten into a wonder of wit and a musical prodigy.

She was utterly lacking in a sense of humor herself, and she had never been able to understand the different major and minor keys, or the intricacies of time, in music.

She decided to give her son those things she lacked.

She put him in the hands of music teachers, and she procured for him all the humorous books she could find in the libraries.

Then she devoted an hour in the silence each day to asserting success for her child.

But the boy was bored with the books; and he was the dullest pupil in music ever known; and after three years his discouraged music master advised the mother to waste no more money on her son's musical education, but to give him opportunity to develop his taste for athletics. Thereupon the mother decided there was no truth in Mental Science, or the theories about the divine power in each soul to be what it willed to be. But the woman had not used good sense.

Wit is a gift, like music, poetry and painting.

A sense of humor lacking, it is difficult to train or direct a mind to see the merry or absurd or comical side of things.

It would be impossible to teach a boy born with a mechanical genius to compose oratories or epics. It would be a waste of time to try.

Just so it would be folly to try to train the serious or philosophical mind to humor.

Let each human being grow into the best of his own kind. Train him along natural lines—that is the way to educate.

Common sense is quite another thing. It can be cultivated by teachers and parents in children who do not seem to possess it in any degree. But first the parents and the teachers must possess it—and few do.

I have seen a dreamy, visionary, improvident and extravagant boy trained into practical prudence, thrift and economy by the persistent guidance of an uncle he loved, and who loved him.

The brain cells were entirely remade in the course of a few years of constant association with the uncle.

Fear is self-consciousness sometimes, sometimes an anaemic condition, sometimes the result of false education.

The child that never hears stories about the "dark," who never read "Little Red Riding Hood" and other fear-inciting tales, and who has not been nagged and scolded by its parents in the effort to make it a perfect child, is not liable to feel fear on slight provocation.

While the great talents cannot be educated into a human being, all the unworthy and unfortunate traits can be educated out and the great virtues awakened by persistent efforts on the part of associates, guides and teachers.

A man who wrote good, strong prose, and who was a devout believer in the power of the will to achieve anything, wasted precious time and energy in a determination to be a poet.

He studied all the laws governing verse; and he put large, virile ideas into correct mechanical form. Yet he was unable to produce one line of poetry.

All he wrote in verse left his readers cold and unstirred, and even worse than that, many of his would-be poems jarred like discords in music, even though they "scanned" according to rule.

But the divine something was not there.

He had mistaken his vocation.

In our application of this great law of the power of the will to achieve results we must employ reason and logic.

We must use this law along the line of least desistance.

Finding where our strongest powers lie and our best abilities, we should turn our whole intellectual and spiritual batteries in that direction. Think, study, meditate, affirm, pray and work to attain desired results in the undertaking for which we are fitted by nature. The man who is color blind and unable to distinguish shades and tones easily may overcome this misfortune to a great degree by patient practice in studying colors. But he should never seek a position on trains or ships, where the observance of signals is an important part of duty; nor should he try to become an artist. In neither field could he gain honors.

Children should be watched as they develop into thinking beings, and their tastes and tendencies should be carefully noted by wise parents and instructors. Then every effort should be made according to odd and new thought methods to encourage the growth of the very best qualities and to eliminate by lack of use all undesirable traits and propensities.

By encouraging words and by forceful silent thought vibrations the most unpromising child may be helped to grow into what a wise parent desires. But the WISE parent never desires the impossible. He does not try to make a mechanic out of a musical prodigy; nor a musical prodigy out of a born mechanic who is stone deaf.

He does not try to produce a Beau Brummel or a dilettante out of an athlete, whose nature cries for the open; nor a farmer out of one who is never content save with a book in hand.

Find first what your child can best do, what he is best fitted by nature to undertake.

Then give him the benefit of your affirmations for success.

All New Thought methods should first fit into God's supreme plan.

Then they cannot fail.

The Mystery

By CONSTANCE CLARKE

ON a quaint old china plate
Stands a patient mandarin,
Waiting at a Chinese gate
For the maid that dwells within.
Days that slip by come and go,
But he always stands just so.

Through the door she peeps at him,
Funny little Chinese maid,
Eyes aslant and figure slim,
In kimono garb arrayed.
But she ever lets him wait
By the funny Chinese gate.

Have they quarrelled, do you think?
Won't she let her lover in,
In his coat of Chinese pink,
Such a patient mandarin?
Centuries may come and go,
Nobody will ever know.

BECKER JURY GOES OUT

JUDGE'S CHARGE BRIEF

NEW YORK, May 22.—The fate of ex-Police Lieutenant Charles A. Becker, accused of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, is now in the hands of the jury.

The second trial of the former police official ended at 12:28 o'clock this afternoon when Justice Seabury concluded his charge to the jury. The court's instructions were a clear analysis of the evidence presented by the State and defence.

The justice held that "Jack Rose," "Bridgie" Webber and Harry Vallon were accomplices in the murder and told the jurors that if they believed the State had corroborated the testimony of these three witnesses a verdict of guilty should be returned.

More than fifty women were in the courtroom when the doors were closed and Justice Seabury began his charge to the jury. Among them was Mrs. Russell Colt, better known as Ethel Barrymore, the actress. Mrs. Becker, garbed in black, sat near the jury box. She was accompanied by her brother, and just back of them sat the defendant's brother and sister-in-law.

Becker entered the room shortly after 10 o'clock. For ten minutes he had stood at the door gazing with seeming indifference at the crowd. Many persons who knew him nodded to the defendant and he returned each salute with a smile.

BEGINS CHARGE.

Justice Seabury began his address to the jury at 10:25 a. m. He thanked the jurors for their patience and then proceeded:

"The defendant was indicted for murder in the first degree, the indictment charging what he did, with malice aforethought, murder Herman Rosenthal on July 16, 1912. The people do not claim that he fired the shot, but that he demanded and procured others to do it."

The court then defined a "reasonable doubt," saying that it was not a subterfuge to which a juryman might resort to escape doing an unpleasant duty.

"There is another rule of law to which I will call your attention," continued the court. "The defendant in all cases may testify in his own behalf, but his neglect or refusal to do so does not act against him."

The court then took up the subject of evidence, differentiating between the two branches of evidence—direct and circumstantial. He said:

"A juror should not be reluctant to determine guilt on circumstantial evidence. The prejudice against circumstantial evidence is without support, and no juror is justified who refuses to accept circumstantial evidence."

The court teold the jurors they could take into consideration the fact that an immunity agreement was entered into between the prosecutor and Becker's accusers—"an immunity agreement that was to hold provided the men were not implicated in the actual firing of the shot. This agreement was with the approval of the court."

WOMEN DESTROY PAINTINGS

LONDON, May 22.—This was a day of revenge for the militant suffragettes of England.

In payment for the arrests of their leaders in yesterday's furious rioting about Buckingham Palace, they ruined six paintings in the Royal Academy and the National Art Gallery, five of them being priceless.

They bombarded the judge with missiles and started a riot in Bow Street Court when the prisoners were arraigned for sentence.

They set fire to the Stoughton Grange, a mansion on the outskirts of London.

And, for full measure, they again carried their warfare into the presence of the royal family.

In the presence of King George, Queen Mary and Princess Mary, at His Majesty's theatre, a hostile demonstration against the King was conducted in the midst of great uproar and excitement.

CLAMOR IN THEATRE.

Just as the royal family was entering to witness a charity performance in aid of the King's pension fund for actors, a woman shouted "You Czar ——"

She was about to yell something else when a man who had been seated beside her clapped his hand over her mouth. Kicking, screaming and struggling the woman was borne to the floor and was immediately carried from the theatre.

This outburst was the signal for a hostile demonstration against King George. Clamor broke out in all parts of the theatre.

Another woman began shouting with her face directed toward the royal box. Still another stood up and began harranguing the king.

MELLEN DESCRIBES NEW HAVEN 'HOLDUPS'

WASHINGTON, May 22.—How the New Haven was "held up" and forced to pay fancy prices for trolley lines was told today by Charles S. Mellen, former president of the New Haven, when he continued his testimony before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

One of the "holdups" was in connection with western Massachusetts trolley lines, when brokerage agents informed the New Haven that certain trolley stocks then selling for 105 would cost the New Haven 115 if certain legislation the New Haven desired in connection with the acquisition of the trolley line was to be obtained.

Still another case brought in the name of Stillman F. Kelly of Cambridge. Kelly got $140,000 for the delivery of stock in another trolley company. The price paid Kelly was to be kept confidential, as Kelly, according to Mr. Mellen's supposition, was getting so much more for his stock that he didn't care to have the other stockholders know.

Folk brought out the fact that the New Haven bought uncompleted as well as completed railroad and trolley lines on their "future prospects." He justified fancy prices and losses in operation of the new lines on the ground of their "probable good earnings."

Mellen preferred to buy properties on which somebody had already spent money, as in the launching of new enterprises "there was always somebody in the way who had to be taken care of."

40,000 TROOPS LINE UP TO FIGHT VILLA

By THOMAS P. COATES,

Special Staff Correspondent of the American.

VERA CRUZ, May 22.—In preparation for his downfall, General Victoriano Huerta is reported to be executing all his political enemies who are held in prison in Mexico City. The dictator is determined that his enemies shall not have the satisfaction of living to see his destruction if he is doomed to fall.

That Huerta is determined to fight and will make his last stand in the Capital is indicated by the fact that he has mobilized 40,000 men in and around Mexico City.

This is the biggest army that has ever been marshalled for the protection of the capital of the Mexican Republic, but the strength which otherwise might be derived from its numbers is offset by the fact that many of the soldiers are raw recruits—conscripts and convicts who know nothing of warfare.

Refugees arriving here today from the Capital state that a public ceremony was made of the execution of Rafaelo Tapia, who has been in prison since the assassination of Francisco I. Madero. Tapia protested against the killing of Madero and thus incurred Huerta's anger.

General Francisco Villa, who is already boasting of what he will do when he takes Mexico City, has sent word to the Capital that he will open all the jails and free all the prisoners as one of his first acts.

General Huerta is determined that none of the men who have opposed him will share this benefit. It is said that there have been batches of prisoners shot to death every night at midnight for the past week.

General Gustavo Maas is said to be preparing an elaborate "official report" to exonerate his soldiers from the charge of murdering Private Samuel Parks. Maas declares that he knew nothing of the fate of the American, no report having been made to him of Parks' capture by any subordinate.

Mexicans, who entered the city from Soledad today said that Rear Admiral Fletcher's Filipino servant, who was captured by the Federals, is being held as a spy in Cordoba.

W. W. Canada, the United States consul, is trying to arrange for the Filipino's liberation. According to an official version the servant was arrested while sight seeing and did not desert his master as early reports had it.

10 WELLESLEY SENIORS ARE TO BECOME BRIDES

Engagements of ten members of the senior class at Wellesley College have been announced. All but two of the grooms-to-be are college men.

The honor of being class bride will go to Miss Helen A. Nixon of Boston, who will be married on June 30 to Curtis Morrison Hilliard, Dartmouth, '05. Mr. Hilliard is professor of biology and sanitary science at Simmons College. The Hilliard home will be in Wellesley Hills.

The mariage of Miss Jean H. Miller of Philadelphia to Edmund Schloss of the same city will take place on June 11. Though Miss Miller will become a bride before Miss Nixon, she will not be class bride, as the date of her wedding is five days before commencement, when she will receive her degree.

One senior announced that she will be married just three years after receiving her bachelor of arts degree. She is Miss Abbie Bernice Reed of Minneapolis, who, on leaving Wellesley, will study to be a nurse. Meanwhile Walter Annan, a senior in the University of Minnesota, will study medicine for three years. Then they will be married and go to China as missionaries.

Miriam Shoe of Grafton will be married next September to Abbot P. Usher, Harvard, '04.

Jessie Evelyn Asher of Willimantic, Ct., will be married next Fall to Reuben Henri Bowden of Jacksonville, Fla., a senior in Columbia.

Saba Thomas' of Hanson announced her engagement to Paul Foster, Boston University, '13.

Harriet Blake of Omaha is to wed George Edward Akerson of Minneapolis, Harvard, '12. Other engagements announced were: Beatrice Blake of Allston and Edward Curtis Matthews, Jr., of Portsmouth, N. H., Bowdoin, '10; Helen Hayward and Donald MacLeod Keith, both of Brockton, Lucille Woodling of Cranford, N. J., and Lambert L. Davis, Pennsylvania, '12, of Tacoma, Wash.

A sophomore girl, Marian Warner, will leave college this Summer to marry John Snyder Carlisle of Brooklyn.

Dr. Wiley Warns Somerville Girl Against Sausages

In the future three children at least in Somerville will not eat frankfurters. The following correspondence took place between Elizabeth Weeks, the twelve-yar-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Weeks of No. 52 Boston street, Somerville, and Harvey W. Wiley, M. D., former government food expert.

Elizabeth wrote to Dr. Wiley:

"We three children like frankfurters, but papa says they are full of poison, and mamma is reading "Starving America," and she says they are not good for little children to eat. I am twelve years old, Seth Low is nine and Janet seven. We are very well children and have red cheeks. We know if you say they are good we can have the frankfurters once in a while. Please let me know what you think."

Dr. Wiley replied:

"Dear Elizabeth Weeks: Will not something else do for your luncheon in the place of frankfurters? There is no objection to good sausage if it is made from good clean pork in a cleanly way, but unhappily sausages are apt to be made from odds and ends in a dirty way, and they are rather greasy, rich food for little folks at best."

Somerville Girl Wins Gold Medal

Miss Mildred H. Thompson, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, of No. 17½ Vinal avenue, Somerville, has been awarded a gold medal offered by Major John A. Cummings Camp 3, Sons of Veterans, of that city, for the best patriotic essay dealing with the Civil War, written by a member of the senior class of the Somerville High School. It will be read by Miss Thompson at the Memorial Day exercises of Willard C. Kinsley Post 139, G. A. R., in Somerville.

BABY—Waah! Waah! I wanna rattle.

JUDY M'NARY—Hsssh! Hsssh! Nursie has no rattle.

BABY (Points to Grand Trunk rattle)—Gimme that one. Waah!

PUNCH BYRNES (Off stage)—Here—what's that row about. (Enters) Judy, why don't you keep that brat quiet. He'll start publicity.

JUDY M'NARY—He's crying for the Grand Trunk rattle.

BABY — Waah! Gimme the rattle, or the New Haven Crocodile'll get me.

THE CROCODILE (Off stage)—R-r-r-r!

PUNCH BYRNES—There, there, Kid! Quit your publicity. You'll get the rattle, all right. (Shoves the baby's cradle off stage.)

JUDY M'NARY—Will he get it?

PUNCH BYRNES—Judy, that New Haven Crocodile is pretty hungry.

JUDY M'NARY (bashfully)—Yes, yes, go on. You interest me strangely.

PUNCH BYRNES—If we give the baby that Grand Trunk rattle, he'll be peevish!

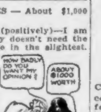
JUDY M'NARY—I'm all ears.

PUNCH BYRNES—That rattle—do you think Baby Boston ought to have it?

JUDY M'NARY (coyly)—How badly do you want my opinion?

PUNCH BYRNES — About $1,000 worth.

JUDY M'NARY (positively)—I am convinced the Baby doesn't need the Grand Trunk rattle in the slightest.



NEW HAVEN CROCODILE (Off stage)—Har! Har! Har!

PUNCH BYRNES—And you think—

JUDY M'NARY—If the Baby gets the rattle it will make him very sick, I'm sure.

NEW HAVEN CROCODILE (Creeps on stage and swalows Grand Trunk rattle)—Gulp!

PUNCH BYRNES—Judy, I can see you're a traffic expert.

JUDY M'NARY—Yes, I'm going to boss the Harbor Commission and work on the Board of Port Directors. We better have a settlement.

PUNCH BYRNES—O. K. Here's the thousand. (Hands Judy the money. Judy absorbs it.)

BABY BOSTON (crawls on stage)—Waah! My rattle's gone. I wanna rattle.

JUDY M'NARY (soothingly)—Now Baby. Be quiet. You don't need a rattle. I'll give you sixteen reasons why it would be bad for you.

(As Judy begins reasons, Baby listens with such deep interest he does not see the Crocodile. Crocodile creeps up and gently swallows Baby.)

(Mellen, the stage manager, appears and bows as the curtain falls.)

EPILOGUE.

(A woodland scene. Enter Judy McNary, fleeing madly. Behind her Baby Boston, grown to man's size after miraculously escaping from the voracious Crocodile. Judy sees a tall, tall tree, and climbs madly upward.)

BABY—Judy, Judy. What about that $1,000?

JUDY—(Preserves a discreet silence and climbs a little higher.)

LATE NEWS BY CABLE

Mrs. Chamberlain to Unveil Memorial.

LONDON, May 22.—Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain has consented to unveil at Weymouth a memorial which the town is erecting to two Dorset worthies, John Endicott and Richard Clark, who took part in the colonization of North America in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.

$630 for Snuffbox.

LONDON, May 22.—In a sale of objects of art at Christie's a Louis XVI. oval gold snuffbox, enameled, with a purple centre and a cover set with an oval enamel plaque painted, dated 1778, brought $630.

Beecham Opera in London.

LONDON, May 22.—With a fine performance Richard Strauss Rosenkavalier opened the Beecham Opera season at the Drury Lane Theatre. Charlotte Uhr of Frankfurt, a newcomer in London, made a distinct hit in the title role.

Novel Flying Device.

LONDON, May 22.—The flying machine in which Gustave Hamel will attempt to cross the Atlantic for the Daily Mail prize of $50,000 will have a device by which the chassis carrying the landing wheels may be detached by drawing a bolt.

Austria-Hungary Can't Secure a Coach

From all indications the position of coach of the Austria-Hungary Olympic track team is going begging. Several American coaches have been offered the position and all have declined. Dr. George Orton, present coach of the University of Pennsylvania team, is the latest coach to turn down the offer. The Red and Blue coach says he would not take the job for $10,000 a year.

Kermit Roosevelt Arrives at Madrid

MADRID, May 22.—Kermit Roosevelt, whose marriage with Miss Belle Wyatt Willard, daughter of the American Ambassador to Spain, is to take place early in June, arrived here today.

T. R. REFERS NEW HAVEN QUERIES TO H. K. SMITH

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., May 22.—Colonel Roosevelt today was the centre of an important political conference attended by Gifford Pinchot, Progressive candidate for Senator in Pennsylvania; E. A. Van Valkenburg, editor of the Philadelphia North American; William Draper Lewis, Progressive candidate for the Governorship of Pennsylvania; George W. Perkins and Walter Brown of Ohio, chairman of the State Central Committee.

Colonel Roosevelt declared that his faith in the integrity of the rank and file of the Republican party served to calm in his mind any doubt about the election of Pinchot as Senator from Pennsylvania.

"Times come when it is the duty of all good citizens to sink ordinary party differences and stand up either against flagrant wrongdoing in public life or against policies fatal to the welfare of the nation at home and the honor of the nation abroad," said the Colonel.

T. R. TO STUMP FOR JOHNSON.

"I have confidence in the integrity of the rank and file of the Republican party, and that they will support Mr. Pinchot."

The Colonel declared that he had communicated with Governor Hiram Johnson of Calfornia, and had promised to stump that State in behalf of his old running mate when the latter seeks re-election.

"I cannot tell you just what we have been discussing," said the Colonel, waving his hand toward his war board sitting around the long library table, "but I am safe in saying that our discussions are not all of a literary nature."

Apropos the latest testimony of Charles S. Mellen in regard to Roosevelt's advice about selling to Charles W. Morse the steamship lines of the New Haven Railroad, the Colonel said:

RE-HASH NEW HAVEN MATTER.

"I refer you to Herbert Knox Smith, who was then Corporation Commissioner, and who knew all about my conversation with Mellen. Mr. Smith has gone over the entire matter in great detail.

"Just as we decide that an incident is explained to the satisfaction of all, it crops out again. For example, the Harvester Trust controversy and the Tennessee Coal and Iron discussions. They, like the New Haven steamship holdings, are always being brought up and rehashed."

IRISH PARTY 'WHIP' ACTIVE IN COMMONS

LONDON, May 22.—The whips of the government coalition in the House of Commons today began preparing for a severe fight when division is taken in that chamber on the home rule for Ireland bill Monday afternoon. Leaders of the Liberals, Irish, Nationalists and Laborites solemnly warned every member of the party to be present so that the government could muster its full strength.

Members of the coalition who are going out of the city for the week-end were told to return in time for Monday's session of Parliament. [illegible] the Unionist side A. Bonar Law and Sir Edward Carson were engaged in rallying the full opposition strength.

Hope Abandoned for Jacob A. Riis

BARRE, May 22.—"Slightly weaker was the doctor's report today on the condition of Jacob A. Riis, writer and social worker, who is ill at his Summer home here. Dr. W. S. Bates, the attending physician, said that hope for Mr. Riis' recovery had been abandoned.

Alexander W. Samuel Addresses the Antis

Alexander Wenyon Samuel, a prominent London anti-suffragist, speaks today before the Brookline branch of the Massachusetts Anti-Suffrage Association. Mr. Samuel says: "The suffrage movement in England is politically dead. It has split and split and split again in meaningless squabbles, while the anti-suffragists, who number many women who are leaders in English thought, are consistently rendering sound public service in their respective spheres."

Woman in Trance on Witness Stand

SPRINGFIELD, May 22.—Mrs. Eva De Lon startled the Superior Court by going into a trance while on the witness stand. Mrs. De Lon, who was being tried on the charge of practicing medicine illegally, lapsed into seeming unconsciousness for three or four minutes. When she opened her eyes she said:

"It was a phychic message."

The jury found Mrs. De Lon guilty.

Try Skin Absorption Instead of Cosmetics

The constant use of rouge and powder invites a coarsened, roughened condition of the skin, eruptions, enlarged pores and wrinkles. If you've learned this from experience, suppose you quit cosmetics and try the following:

Ask your druggist for an ounce of ordinary mercolized wax and begin using this tonight. Apply like cold cream, washing it off in the morning. Keep this up for a week or two. The wax will literally absorb the coarse, colorless or blemished top skin, but so gradually as not to discommode you at all. Just as gradually the clear, velvety, naturally-tinted underskin comes to the surface. And mercolized wax becomes your everlasting friend.

For those wrinkles and large pores make a face bath by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. This has remarkable astringent and tonic properties, and beneficial results come quickly.—ADVERTISEMENT.

MODEL CLOTHES
For Men and Young Men
VERSUS WIDELY ADVERTISED READY-MADE CLOTHING

If you look at our window displays, season in and season out, or go further and permit us to show you the vast assortments on the five floors we occupy—and then make comparisons elsewhere—you will understand more clearly the difference between Georges Model Clothes and "the ready-mades."

Georges garments are produced in our New York workrooms by well paid journeymen tailors, duplicating the latest creations of New York's leading Fifth Avenue style originators.

No manufacturer or middleman tacks on his extra profits to Georges prices. We pay tribute to no magazine advertising campaign.

Moreover, Georges Model Garments are sold exclusively through our six big stores—in five great cities—two in New York, one in Philadelphia, Buffalo, Providence and Boston. Your purchase here is practically exclusive in comparison with "the ready mades" where a certain make will be found selling all over the country. Our stores form

The largest exclusive retail clothing organization in the United States.

There is a style treatment in a Georges model garment which you cannot duplicate in any other clothes—regardless of price considerations.

All Alterations Are Free.

GAY RENO LIFE COSTS BOSTON GIRL DIVORCE

A dispatch from Reno, today says: "Elizabeth Georgia Bell, of pretty face and figure and amply supplied with funds, former telephone girl at Hotel Touraine, Boston, wife of Chester Arthur Bell, former draughtsman with the General Electric Company at Lynn, now at No. 8 Carpenter street, Providence, has discovered that the social whirl of divorce colony life in Reno has its limitations.

"At the close of the trial of her divorce case, during which testimony was introduced respecting her alleged misconduct in the local apartment house where she lived, the court denied her decree.

"An effort by her attorneys to have their motion for an appeal trial granted also failed, for Judge Salisbury refused to permit the case to be reopened. Bell permitted a default, having no desire to oppose his wife's action.

"The couple were marired in Boston, November 25, 1909. She alleged non-support and extreme cruelty, also that he repeatedly accused her of misconduct and choked and beat her and threatened to kill her."

NEW WITNESSES IN MULLINS CASE MAY FREE THE ACCUSED

Many of the jurors who convicted James Mantir and Peter D. Delorey of the murder of Annie Mullins, today favor their pardon from State prison, where Mantir is serving life and Delorey eighteen years.

New witnesses have come into the case for the pardon proceedings. Owing to developments the petitions may not be filed until Saturday or Monday.

Attorney Frank McDermott, counsel for Delorey, and Attorney John A. E. Moroney, counsel for Mantir, are working night and day on the pardon evidence. They are being assisted by District Attorney William J. Corcoran of Middlesex County, who shares the counsel's belief that the boys are innocent.

NEVER SAW THE GIRL.

Attorney Moroney said today: "Irrespective of the innocence claims, the verdict was unsound. It was not borne out by the evidence. It was inconsistent. Suppose, for the sake of argument, these boys really had a hand in that murder. If Mantir killed the Mullins girl, as the government claimed, there could, legally, be no compromise. It should have been a first degree verdict or nothing. We didn't make any plea for second degree or manslaughter.

"But is it reasonable to believe Peter Delorey would have taken eighteen years' imprisonment when he might have got freedom instead, unless Mantir, my client, was innocent? All Delorey had to do was to comply with the wishes of the police and he would have escaped. He simply had to stand by that so-called third degree confession, but he knew in his heart that he couldn't. He knew Jim Mantir never did it. He knew, as he has since told Attorney McDermott and me, that they never even saw the girl.

"So, stubbornly refusing to turn State's evidence at the trial, he refuted the alleged confession, insisted that he and Mantir had no hand in the crime, and, as the jury did not accept his word, he took his medicine with Mantir. Would he be apt to take these chances unless he was fighting for the truth? He wasn't going to sacrifice an innocent companion and he did his best to atone for the wrong he did Mantir when he let the police drag anything to the contrary from him at the long examination in which his aunt figured.

"WOULD HAVE FLED."

"Another feature seems to have been overlooked. Do you suppose for a minute that, if the young Greek had actually committed the crime, he would have remained around here a whole year where they could have caught him at any time? Wouldn't he have been more likely to have fled to his native land or to parts unknown? But instead we find him working for a time in Boston and then at Manchester, N. H.

"He was brought down from Manchester on a decoy note and arrested near the elevator in the lower lobby of this building, No. 209 Washington street. He pleaded with the officers to take him up to my office for a few minutes, but they wouldn't consent. The arrest happened downstairs and I didn't know it."

HARLOWE GIRL'S BROTHER ASKS FOUL PLAY HUNT

Despite the report of Medical Examiner Leary that Laura B. Harlowe of Dorchester came to her death by drowning as a suicide, the young woman's brother, Herbert L. Harlowe of Everett, believes that foul play and not suicide brought about her death.

The brother emphatically told the police of the Fields Corner station that his sister had no reason to commit suicide, and urged renewed efforts by the police to determine definitely just how the young woman came to her death.

That an unfortunate love affair drove the girl to self-destruction is the opinion of Medical Examiner Leary. No marks of violence were found upon the body. The girl had removed all identifying marks on clothing and in pockets, and only her combs and clothing itself led to identification by her sister.

Miss Harlowe disappeared in March. She was last seen leaving a car in the evening near the Neponset river. She had left her home on Southern avenue, Dorchester, an hour before. The river near where the girl alighted from the car was dragged repeatedly.

Girl Who Prattled in Greek When Ten Goes Insane at 28

LOS ANGELES, May 22.—After condensing the educational experience of a whole lifetime into twenty-eight years, Miss Esther Richards is today under police guard awaiting a mentality examination. Her detention followed an attempt to commit suicide.

While playing with dolls she composed poems in Greek and Latin. When ten years old she wrote a Greek play. Her feats in mathematics were marvelous. At ten she had more learning than most educated persons.

7 NORWELL HIGH PUPILS AT WAR ON GRADUATION

NORWELL, May 22.—Ambition and jealousy are at war in the Norwell High School, and the members of the School Committee are at a loss how to straighten matters out. There are only four members of the senior class and three in the junior. The school board wants to graduate both classes together, but the plan has met with a storm of opposition by the seniors and Attorney W. J. Callahan is fighting the move.

The seniors expressed themselves unwilling that the juniors should share graduation honors with them, protesting that it would be unfair for the juniors, who have done but two years' high school work, to receive diplomas similar to those for which the seniors have done three years' work.

The three juniors replied that they had learned as much in their two years as the seniors had in three.

The seniors were indignant that the juniors should have been given two class day honors, and said all the honors should go to the senior class. The juniors retorted that there were not enough seniors to use up all the five prizes.

The school committee was having its own way at a hearing and had excluded Lawyer Callahan from participation in the proceedings, when Clarence D. Kingsley questioned the committee's legal power to grant high school graduation diplomas to students who had not actually completed the prescribed three-years' course. None of the committee had an answer ready, and the hearing was adjourned.

MILITANTS RUIN PRICELESS PAINTINGS IN REVENGE

JUDGE BOMBARDED BY WOMEN IN COURT RIOT

LONDON, May 22.—The militant suffragettes, in revenge for the arrest of their associates in the rioting about Buckingham Palace yesterday, slipped by the guards in the National Gallery and in the Royal Academy today and wrecked six works of art, five of them considered priceless.

One woman hacked five of the Bellini family paintings in the National Gallery and was captured only after a fierce struggle. Another woman slashed a less valuable work by an American in the Royal Academy.

Pandemonium and scenes approaching serious riot took place in the Bow Street Police Court when the women arrested yesterday were tried.

The magistrate was bombarded with flour bombs. One woman hurled her shoe at him. Another tore away from the officers and escaped in the excitement. The courtroom was crowded, and the judge dared not order it cleared lest some of the women be killed in the battle which would have followed.

Despite the permanent guards which were established at the National Gallery after the Rokeby Venus was slashed, a young woman managed to get into the building by posing as a sightseer. She spent some time consulting her catalog and canvasses in the exhibition, completely allaying any suspicion which the attendants may have had.

After a while the woman entered chamber No. 7, where old masterpieces of the French school are on exhibition. This room was poorly guarded and afforded the suffragette her best chance. She drew a hatchet from beneath her jacket and began smashing at the glass cases enclosing the paintings.

FOUGHT FIERCELY.

The clatter of glass aroused persons in the main gallery, but before they reached the woman's side she had ruined five of the pictures, all of which from the standpoint of the savant were priceless.

Guards pounced upon the woman none too gently, but were met with blows from a pair of muscular arms. After a terrific struggle in which other art works were in danger of being smashed the woman was finally overpowered. She kept shouting that she "sought retribution" and all the way to the Vine street police station she continued to scream.

After considerable difficulty the woman was identified as Mary Spencer, a member of the Woman's Social and Political Union.

Immediately after the picture-smashing incident all the visitors were ejected and the gallery was closed to prevent further vandalism.

It is expected that a parliamentary inquiry will be asked into the brutality of the police yesterday while dispersing the mobs of women around Buckingham Palace and preventing the militants from getting into the palace quadrangle.

LETTERS OF PROTEST.

Numerous letters of protest from bystanders appeared in newspapers. As some members of Parliament are favorable to the cause of woman suffrage it is believed that a movement for an investigation will soon be underway. The face that all of the fifty-seven prisoners were women except four, who were men, emphasizes the growing demand for an inquiry to the brutal methods of the police, especially the mounted men who rode their horses into the crowds.

Members of the cause declare that it has been helped rather than hindered by Thursday's demonstration, purely because of the savage tactics of the police.'

While the exciting scene was being enacted at the National Gallery another suffragette was raiding the Royal Academy.

Armed with a small axe she attempted to slash several canvasses, but succeeded in ruining only one before she was subdued and arrested. She too was taken to the Vine street police station and the academy was closed to the public.

OFFICER'S STORY.

A guard at the National Gallery who helped to arrest the suffragette at that institution gave the following version of the affair at the police station;

"There was an unusually big crowd in the gallery at the time as a number of students were present making sketches of old masterpieces. The crowd probably accounted for the fact that the woman was able to carry out her design so easily.

"In Room No. 7 there were a number of canvasses done by the famous old Bellini family of Venice as well as masterpieces of the French school. At first we thought the woman only had a hatchet, but after the struggle we found a loaded stick on the floor. She had punctured the famous Bellini painting of 'St. Peter the Martyr with the stick, but we did not find this out at once."

At the Vine street police station the woman was defiant.

"I did this in retaliation for the outrageous treatment of Mrs. Pankhurst," she declared. "I'm not sorry. You can do anything you want to with me, but you won't hold me long in jail. I will refuse to eat. This is the beginning of a new campaign and we are determined to go to any length."

The Royal Academy was filled with a fashionable crowd when the picture slashing incident took place there. The woman used a butcher's cleaver which she had managed to conceal when she entered the building.

She was standing before a landscape entitled "Prima Vera," painted by George Clausen, an American, when she suddenly drew her weapon and began to slash madly at the canvas. Detectives had to fight to protect the woman from fashionably gowned women and well dressed men who attempted to wreak immediate punishment upon the intruder. An attache of the Royal Academy said that the money value of the ruined painting was $1,000.

When she was arrested the woman refused to tell her name.

PAINTINGS RUINED.

The five pictures which were ruined by the suffragettes in the National Gallery, all of which were in the collection of Bellini, were:

1.—Madonna and child, surrounded by infants and saints.
2.—John and Christopher.
3.—Portrait of Girolano Malatini.
4.—Landscape showing the death of St. Peter the Martyr.
5.—Madonna and child, with portrayal of Christ's agony in the garden of Gethsemane.

The scene of suffrage action and excitement shifted to Bow stret police court when the cases of the suffragettes who were arested yesterday were called. A mighty crowd of men and women, the most of them sufagettes and their sympathizers, moved upon the court before the hour for the hearings to begin. But as well as these there were many who came as sightseers, being attracted by curiosity to see what kind of women they were who had battled so savagely with the police on Constitution Hill.

Just as the presiding magistrate was getting ready to commence calling the cases the notes of a bugle were heard. Then the strident tones of "The Marseillaise," played with the full force of a pair of stentorian lungs, came through the open windows.

ANTHEM FROM ROOF.

A male supporter of the cause with a bugle concealed beneath his coat had climbed to the roof of the court house, and at a signal from the street began trumpeting the song which for a century has been the monarch of revolutionary anthems. Detectives were hastily dispatched to silence the daring bugler, and the music suddenly stopped in the middle of a note. But the spirit of the hymn had bestirred the battle instinct in the fighting women, and they set up a cheer and began shouting "Votes for Women!"

It was decided to go ahead with the cases without trying to clear the courtroom, for it was feared that any demonstration of force would result in hand-to-hand fighting in which some of the women might be killed.

Just as the first suffragette was called to the dock to answer charges of disorderly conduct and resisting arrest, some one threw a "bomb" made of a paper bag filled with flour. It missed the magistrate's head and struck the wall, where it burst, sending a cloud of white over the court and every one else in his vicinity.

This woman was ordered to deposit $25 bond to keep the peace for six months.

BOMBARD THE JUDGE.

"I will go to jail. I will never furnish any bond to any English court," cried the militant. As this prisoner was being led from the room one of the suffragettes among the prisoners tried to escape. She leaped clear over the railing around the prisoners' dock and managed to reach friends among the spectators. When detectives tried to recover her suffragettes among the spectators rallied to her rescue and a fierce fight ensued, which filled the courtroom with clamor. While the fight was at its height the spectators began bombarding all the officials with bags filled with flour. One struck the magistrate on the head, nearly knocking him to the floor. He emerged from a shower of flour spluttering with anger. He was powdered white from head to foot.

Partial order was at last restored and the magistrate, after wiping the flour from his eyes, ears and mouth, ordered the proceedings to go on. Just as the next defendant was being arraigned she drew a shoe from her foot and hurled with unerring aim at the judge, who caught it just in time to prevent being hit on the nose.

"Fine work," shrieked the women.

The spectators broke into wild cheers as the now thoroughly angry judge passed the shoe to an attache of the court.

The first male supporter to be arraigned was sentenced to two weeks in jail.

ALL REFUSE BAIL.

"Treat us all alike, for we are equals," screamed the women as the man was arraigned. A majority of the women were ordered to post bail of $25 to keep the peace for six months, but all refused.

In addition to the suffragettes arrested near Buckingham Palace a number of others were arraigned, the total number of cases being heard in Bow Street Court being sixty-two.

Pandemonium reigned throughout, the women hurling missiles at the court or shouting. The spectators disregarding the admonitions of the court attendants joined in the clamor.

While the hearings were in progress word was received that the charge of obstructing traffic which had been lodged against Mrs. General Flora Drummond had been withdrawn. This was the signal for a wild outburst of applause as Mrs. Drummond is one of the most militant of the militants.

We have never found a more prompt nor effective remedy for neuralgic pains than antikamnia tablets, and to those who are subject to such pains we recommend that they keep a supply of tablets on hand, as one dose, two tablets, given in the beginning of the attack, usually makes it unnecessary to administer the second dose. FINANCIERS CALL NINE DEMOCRATIC SENATORS WHO DESERT WALSH

The success of the Walsh administration and the future of the young and popular Democratic Governor are alike seriously threatened, Democratic leaders confessed today, by the conduct of Democratic reactionaries in the Massachusetts Senate.

There is everything to indicate that the corporations never had more friends in the Massachusetts Senate than they have today. And, while the Senate is "controlled" by the Republican party, a handful of Democrats are included among those who answer most promptly when the interests ring the bell.

Just as the Legislature is about to face the big and important affairs of the legislative year, nine Democrats in the Senate have snapped their fingers under the noses of the party leaders and party followers by boldly breaking one of the party pledges and deserting the Democratic Governor.

There is nothing to be gained by mincing words. These nine Democratic Senators violated the pledge of their party on Honest Banking. They turned their backs on the Democratic party, but they pleased the big and influential men of the trust companies.

Nine of them "gone bad," with most of the Democratic program yet to come!

Progressive Party leaders admitted today that the killing of the Tinkham Pure Banking law, WITH THE AID OF NINE DEMOCRATIC VOTES, is one of the best things that had happened on Beacon Hill up to this time to encourage the Progressive rank and file. Much will be made of it in the Bird campaign, just as much will be made of the retention of William S. McNary in office despite recent revelations at Washington.

WHO KILLED THE BILL.

The Democratic platform having promised to place "a heavy penalty on the acceptance of fees or gifts by the officers of trust companies," and Governor Walsh having duly recommended legislation in keeping with the platform, these nine Democrats in the Senate killed the bill:

ALEXIS BOYER, JR., of Springfield.
CHARLES A. DEAN of Wakefield.
HENRY J. DRAPER of Lowell.
EDWARD FISHER of Westford.
JOHN H. MACK of North Adams.
PHILIP J. McGONAGLE of Boston.
HUGH O'ROURKE of Worcester.
JOHN F. SHEEHAN of Holyoke.
JAMES P. TIMILTY of Boston.

From the beginning of the year the work of the present Senate has been as raw and as crude as anything seen on Beacon Hill when the Grand Old Party was in the ascendency in State and nation. In everything that has apparently been "put over," however, Democrats have been as conspicuous as Republicans. If Senators took it for granted that their meetings were held behind closed doors, in a cellar, at midnight, some of them couldn't be any bolder.

It is common talk at the State House—possibly with a purpose—that the Big Lobbyists are not operating this year. If this by any chance happens to be true, the interests that formerly employed Big Lobbyists must have come to the opinion by this time that Big Lobbyists are Big Bluffs. They do not need them. They can do their legislative business direct.

The Pure Banking bill, first of the party pledge bills, reaches the Senate, and nine Democrats—count them, Boyer, Dean, Draper, Fisher, Mack, McGonagle, O'Rourke, Sheehan and Timilty—blow up and break away.

Governor Walsh is making no attempt to conceal his discomfiture over the treachery of these Democratic Senators. It was said today that the platform bills are being checked up in the executive offices and that the Governor, who, Foss said last Fall, is "without a backbone," will go out into the districts of renegade Senators next Fall to tell their constituents how they turned upon him when he needed them the most.

In the cases of some of the nine who voted against the Pure Banking bill, the Governor has no reason to be surprised.

RECORDS IN SENATE.

O'Rourke quit once before, on the promise of his party to submit the question of Woman Suffrage to the men of Massachusetts.

Sheehan and Fisher, although bound in that matter by no party doctrine, voted against the request of the Governor for the right to have an Adjutant-General of his own selection.

One or two others in the lot have from time to time given Democrats reason to worry.

The Senate this year has time and time again killed a bill and refused a roll call which would put Senators on record.

Senators who had previously voted FOR the bill, sat dumb in their seats yesterday—refusing to answer to their names—while the Elevated killed a bill calling for the removal of the overhead structures in Charlestown and the South End.

The "railroad penalty" bill—sneeringly called a "hardy annual" because it has been showing up unsuccessfully year after year since Mellen and Morgan began their raid upon Massachusetts—has been buffeted about from week to week because, it is said, "people Down Town" did not show any interest.

With such a Senate on his hands, Governor Walsh is in need of support from the people as he has not needed support since last November. It is for Democrats throughout the State to watch Beacon Hill from now until the end of the session.

No Democrat stands out conspicuously in the Senate this year either for his ability or his zeal for bills in the interest of the people.

The best Senate records, up to date, belong to two Progressives, Senator Charles M. Cox of Melrose and Senator Charles E. Burbank of East Bridgewater.

If nothing else will appeal to the Democrats in the Senate—if they mean to trail along with the discredited Republican management of that body—they may be impressed with the figures of the gubernatorial election of last November:

Walsh, Democrat, 183,267; Bird, Progressive, 127,755; Gardner, Republican, 116,705.

The Democratic party, its leaders admit, is very much on trial in Massachusetts.

And, some of these Democratic leaders tell the AMERICAN, they have little doubt of what the verdict will be if Boyer, Dean, Draper, Fisher, Mack, McGonagle, O'Rourke, Sheehan and Timilty repeat once or twice their pro-corporation performance on the Pure Banking bill.

Nine Senate Democrats Who Think the Platform 'Something to Get in On'

WHAT THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM DECLARED:

A heavy penalty should be placed upon the acceptance of fees or gifts by officials or employes of banks and trust companies for making or securing loans.—One of the planks of the Democratic platform, Massachusetts, campaign of 1913.

WHAT THE DEMOCRATIC GOVERNOR SAID:

I recommend legislation to prohibit any officer, director or employe of a banking institution from receiving a personal gain or profit from the sale of notes, stocks, bonds, for negotiating loans, and other transactions of this character.—David I. Walsh, inaugural address to the Legislature, January 8, 1914.

WHAT NINE DEMOCRATIC SENATORS DID:

Violating the platform and ignoring the Governor, they voted AGAINST the Tinkham bill, which provided that no officer, director or employe of a trust company should receive any fee, commission, gift or other consideration for or on account of any transaction made by or on behalf of the trust company of which he is officer, director or employe.

AND WHO ARE THE SENATE PLEDGE-BREAKERS OF THE CROP OF 1914?

ALEXIS BOYER, JR. JOHN H. MACK.
CHARLES A. DEAN. PHILIP J. McGONAGLE.
HENRY J. DRAPER. HUGH O'ROURKE.
EDWARD FISHER. JOHN F. SHEEHAN.
JAMES P. TIMILTY.

THEY KILLED THE BILL. WHO WANTED IT KILLED?

The trust companies.

CHARGE SOUTH BOSTON CENTRE IS A FAILURE

Eight charges against the South Boston Evening Centre are made in a majority report of a committee of the Citizens' Association in that section.

They are:

That the centre has beeme a loafing place for children of between twelve and fourteen years.

That weekly dances, open to the public, have been conducted at which an admission fee has been charged.

That there has been a lack of discipline.

That children are being taught to play pool.

That the recent burlesque show given by the centre was not a proper kind of performance.

That the community spirit necessary in a successful centre is lacking.

That persons in charge of the centre are unsuccessful in interesting adults, and to make a showing, have encouraged the attendance of young children.

That there is a flagrant waste of the city's money.

SAYS SULPHUR DRIVES ECZEMA FROM THE SKIN

Use Like Cold Cream to Instantly Stop Itching and Clear the Skin.

Sulphur, says a renowned dermatologist, just common, bold-sulphur made into a thick cream, will soothe and heal the skin when irritated and broken out with Eczema or any form of eruption. The moment it is applied all itching ceases, and after two or three applications the Eczema disappears, leaving the skin clear and smooth.

He tells Eczema sufferers to get from any good pharmacy an ounce of bold-sulphur cream and apply it to the irritated parts the same as you would any cold cream.

For many years common bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position in the practice of dermatology and cutaneous affections by reason of its parasite-destroying property. It is not only parasiticidal, but also antipruritic, antiseptic and remarkably healing in all irritable and inflammatory conditions of the skin. While not always effecting a permanent cure, it never fails to instantly subdue the angry itching and irritation and heal the Eczema right up, and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.—This is published for Walter Luther Dodge Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Schlitz

We extend the hand of warm fellowship to everyone who raises the pure beer flag.

The brewing industry is one of the greatest in the world.

The beer drinking nations are among the strongest.

No one can afford to take chances with the purity of beer.

That's why the light bottle is condemned.

It is insufficient protection from light—which starts decay even in pure beer.

VETERANS WILL HOLD MEMORIAL ON THE COMMON

The second annual memorial service of the Boston Camps of United Spanish War Veterans will be held at the Parkman bandstand, Boston Common, on Sunday.

Previous to the service there will be held one of the greatest military spectacles ever attempted by an organization of this kind. Participating in it will be every branch of the military service, regulars, militia and veterans. The British Military and Naval Veterans will march and take part in the memorial service with their brother veterans of the United States. The parade will form in three divisions.

The first will form on Summer street and extend across the Summer street bridge into South Boston. This division will be composed of regular and militia detachments.

The second division will be composed of veterans of the Civil and Spanish Wars and will form on Dorchester avenue, with left extending toward South Boston.

The third division will form on Atlantic avenue, with its right resting on Summer street. The Ninth Regiment Veteran Association, First Regiment Association and the British Military and Naval Veterans will make up this division.

There will be six bands and three drum corps.

The parade will be headed by a detail of mounted police, followed by a special detail of officers and veterans of the Spanish War and commanded by the department drillmaster, Lieutenant Patrick King. There are sixty-four officers in this escort.

Past Commander P. J. Mullane of Bogan Camp U. S. W. V., is chief marshal, and Past Commander Joseph Scott of Bagley Camp is chief of staff.

The parade will start at 10:45 and move over the following route: Summer to Washington to Court to Scollay square to Tremont to Park to Beacon to the Charles street entrance to Common. Thence to bandstand where formation will be made in mass column formation around the bandstand.

The review will be made from the stand on the Charles street mall by Lieutenant-Governor Barry, Mayor Curley, members of the City Council and the speakers and guests.

After the services at the bandstand the line will form and march to the Tremont street mall where the chief marshal and staff will review and dismiss the troops.

The services will be preceded by a concert by the Commonwealth Band, which will also render the musical part of the program. The spectacular feature will be the assembling of all the colors and march of same to position in front of stand where the ceremony of drooping colors for the dead will take place. This will be followed by a dirge and then taps will be sounded.

The speakers will be the Lieutenant-Governor, Mayor, Dr. Charles Fleischer and John A. Kelher. Musical numbers by male choir and band will make up the balance of the program.

Boy Admits Robbing Own School 13 Times

'More Danger in Flies Than Preservatives'

NEW YORK, May 22.—"There is more serious harm from infection of food by flies and by improper handling than by the use of preservatives. It is easier to scold the corner grocer than to instruct the cook," said Professor C. E. A. Winslow, of the College of the City of New York.

Girls Run Into Hive, Are Attacked by Bees

LADY MARGARET MACKWORTH, who praises Mrs. Pankhurst as suffrage leader.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Lady Margaret Mackworth, daughter of the "coal ingk," David A. Thomas, and the wife of Captain Humphrey Mackworth, of the Royal Monmouthshire Engineers, and heir to the baronetcy, sailed for her home in England today.

Before sailing she said:

"England requires a leader like Mrs. Pankhurst. And we are surely much nearer the vote on account of her activities. She is wonderful—the greatest woman of the age. Without her leadership suffrage would undoubtedly become almost a dead issue in England. She is the leading spirit, the fire that kindles the enthusiasm necessary to keep interest in the cause alive."

DANISH CRITIC CALLS POE OUR GREATEST POET

NEW YORK, May 22.—Dr. George Brandes, the Danish literary critic, who is in his seventy-third year, arrived from Hamburg by the Hamburg-American line steamship Vaterland on his first visit to the United States.

He said he was delighted to come to the country for which he had such a high regard and for whose authors he had such a kindly feeling. "Poe," he said, "I am inclined to think, was the greatest American. Next to him in my esteem is Thomas Paine. He was a heretic and so am I. Of the contemporary writers of modern fiction I think Jack London is the best. Upton Sinclair and the late Frank Norris, both distinctly American in spirit and ideas, come ext.

"Emerson, of course, was the greatest American thinker, but the man who held a warm spot in the heart of all Danes was Longfellow

"He understood us and our language and literature better than any other American. His translation of the Danish national hymn was wonderful."

WASHING WON'T RID HEAD OF DANDRUFF

Dissolve It, That's Best Way

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to preserve your hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair more quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everyone notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

HAPPENINGS IN SOCIETY

SMART SET IS BUSY WITH SUMMER PLANS

MARGARET EDSON, WELLESLEY GRADUATE, TO BE BRIDE OF TECH MAN

An engagement of wide interest comes in the announcement that Miss Margaret Orr Edson, Wellesley, '09, is to wed Richard Custer Collins, Tech, '08. Miss Edson, whose home is at Whitman, was prominent both socially and in athletics while at Wellesley. She is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. Charles H. Edson and is regarded by her many friends as a charming hostess. Mr. Collins is of Beverly and Malden.

* * *

Mrs. Arthur Hunnewell and her daughters, Miss Jane and Miss Julia, have closed their Dartmouth street house and have gone to their Summer place at Wellesley.

* * *

Mrs. Hugh Cabot has gone to Cohasset for the season. She has taken a lease of the Porter house on Nichols road. Mr. and Mrs. Theodore G. Bremer of Brookline have occupied the Porter house for the past three Summers.

* * *

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Virginia E. Percival to the Rev. Herbert Britton George, rector of St. Edmund's Church, Chicago.

Mis Percival was formerly a teacher of English in the Classical High School at Lynn and is now connected with Lake Erie College, Plainsville, Ohio. The wedding will take place in New York on August 20.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. William Osborne Blake have closed their town house in Beacon street and have gone to their country place at Hingham. The Blakes are in mourning and will take but little part in the social gaieties of the South Shore this season.

* * *

Evidently the North Shore swimming pool will be as popular this Summer as ever. Among the members of the club are T. Jefferson Coolidge, Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond, Miss Elizabeth Hammond, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Coolidge, William H. Coolidge, Jr., Miss Katherine Coolidge, Mr. and Mrs. Claud Kilpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald A. Bramwell, Miss Jane Fairfield, Miss Charlotte Read, Miss Corinne Searle, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest W. Longfellow, Mrs. John C. Howe, Mrs. Lee McMillan, the Misses Ranney and Mrs. Walter Yates.

Invitations have been issued by Mr and Mrs. William Dwight Bigelow of Springfield for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ruth Colton Bigelow, to Henry Merritt Wriston, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Henry L. Wriston of Somerville, formerly of Malden. The wedding will take place June 6, at the home of the bride's parents in Springfield.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Rand Thomas of Comomnwealth avenue are of the Mattapoiset colony this season. They are occupying the Battelle villa there and are planning much entertaining.

* * *

Mrs. Stanley McCormick is to spend the Summer at Newport and late in the season will be joined there by her mother, Mrs. Wirt Dexter, who is now in Europe.

* * *

General and Mrs. Francis Henry Appleton of Marlboro street are at the Munchinger King cottage in Newport and will remain there until about the first of June, when they will go to their Summer residence in Peabody.

* * *

The festival ball of the Richards School of Dancing will be held Friday night at the Copley-Plaza. Mrs. F. Leavitt, Miss Imogene Conlons, Mrs. W. H. L. Odell and Mrs. Carl Watson are patronesses. Miss Mabel Going's orchestra will play.

* * *

The students of Wellesley College heard an address by Mrs. A. J. George, field secretary of the Anti Suffrage Association.

* * *

The Manuscript Club of Boston held a reception in its rooms on Huntington avenue in honor of Professor Dallas Lore Sharpe and Mrs. Sharpe.

Pinned Under Auto, Victim Near Death

PROVIDENCE, May 22.—Harding Harris was probably fatally injured and his cousin, Alfred Rivard, was badly hurt when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a motor truck in Warwick Neck district and was overturned. The men were pinned under the car.

'PHYLLIS,' WITH ROMANCE AND DANCES, HERE

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

Undaunted by several false starts, "Phyllis" burst into full view at the Cort Theatre last evening not in the least injured by the additional week of rehearsals that its promoters bestowed upon the piece. As a late season offering in music, comedy and dancing, "Phyllis" clung to many of the old conventions that have served the hot weather drama so well, and which always seem to be in good taste on a rising temperature.

Between the book and lyrics of James C. Gray and the music of Harold Vicars, the latter appeared to get a little the best of it on the initial performance. Possibly this may be due to the strenuous evening Mr. Vicars put in running the orchestra. At any rate, he deserves credit for several tuneful numbers in particular, and for a generally useful score on the whole.

Two of the brightest musical bits were a waltz song in the first act, which was sung by Grace Freeman and John H. Goldsworthy, and a concerted number, "Spotlight," which was led by Frank Ellis and Margery Gateson. To give zest to the "Spotlight" number the company paraded through the audience flashing pocket lamps on unprotected bald heads.

The story of "Phyllis" was more or less concerned in a wedding that went astray, and the complications were not cleared until 10:30 p. m. After a few performances, when the company gets tuned up to its surroundings, doubtless a logical reason will be seen for many of the things that could not be plainly understood in the stress of so much first-night excitement. You may be sure that there was romance galore in "Phyllis," in which a manly chauffeur performed tenor heroics for the benefit of a millionaire's daughter. Miss Freeman gave grace and a sweet voice to Phyllis, which, after all, is sufficient in modern musical comedy.

There was one young woman among the toilers who made a small part look large and pleasant. Yes, it was Miss Gateson. She had musical comedy sense, a splendid personality and a fine inclination to perform her duty properly. Keep your eye on this young woman.

Possibly the real hit of the evening was the sensational dancing contributed by Rosita Mantilla and C. Balfour Lloyd. The lady's name reads as if she might have been imported for the advancement of art, but you never can tell. But she could dance.

As for her partner, you knew his name was Balfour the instant he appeared, but he, too, understood the language of the dance and all was forgiven. The dancing numbers swept the audience into its most enthusiastic moments.

"Phyllis" proved itself light-waisted Summer entertainment, somewhat in need of encouragement.

HUNT METHUEN GIRL REPORTED 8 DAYS MISSING

LAWRENCE, May 22.—The police today began a search for twelve-year-old Alice Willett, who has been missing from the home of her uncle, William Vignault, No. 19 Brown court, Methuen. The child left the house to go to the French school on Lowell street, and has not been heard from since. Her teacher declares that she did not report on that day.

No theories as to the probable cause of her disappearance are advanced by her relatives. She is described as at least fourteen years old in appearance, of dark complexion, with hair that she wore in two braids.

She wore no hat when she left her uncle's home. Her blue, three-quarter-length coat nearly covered her black and white check dress, that was fitted with a red collar.

The girl speaks French fluently, but has little command of English.

Woman, 101, Dies.

Mrs. Mariano de St. Francis of Medford, 101, is dead at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary J. Conant, No. 2 Golden avenue, South Medford.

Pierce's Corn Plasters

cost you nothing if they fail to remove that corn

Pierce's Corn Plasters are sold under the iron-clad guarantee that they will remove your corn quickly, completely and without pain. If they don't, the druggist refunds your money. They give immediate relief and remove ordinary corns in 48 hours—corns of long standing, in 5 days. A thin plaster—no uncomfortable crowding.

10c and 25c a box. Sold by most druggists. But if you cannot conveniently buy them in your neighborhood, send a dime for a small size box to A. F. Pierce Co., Springfield, Mass.

"TIZ" EASES HOT, SORE, TIRED FEET

No puffed-up, chafed, tender, sweaty feet—no corns or callouses.

When your hot, tired, aching feet feel like paving blocks; all puffed up, chafed, sweaty and smelly, just get from any drug store a 25-cent box of "TIZ"—get the genuine, and begin at once to enjoy real foot comfort. No more sore, burning, tired feet—no more pain in corns, callouses and bunions; your shoes won't feel tight and your feet will never, never hurt or get all tired and swollen. "TIZ" is great—glorious. Don't disappoint your poor, suffering feet by accepting something "just as good," but get "TIZ."

"I. C. S. —Makers of MEN"

More than mere technical information is gained through a course in the International Correspondence Schools.

Character is what counts in any line of endeavor, and the I. C. S. student learns sacrifice, concentration, the habit of thoroughness, and self-confidence in this "Man-building Factory."

These are facts that are recognized by corporation heads and business men, whose ever-present need is the efficient man.

Every unit of the I. C. S. student body, now more than a million strong, represents a striving, aspiring individual, broadened in power and vision by the Schools that teach through the mails.

Think what it means to the future of this country to have 10,000 such transformations taking place every month!

Men who would build character—men who have the ambition to become more efficient in the world's work—will find it well worth while to mark the coupon opposite the occupation that interests them most.

Visit our exhibition of students' work in Boston and see sample instruction papers at Department of Displays, 234 Washington Street.

Standard Brands AT BOYLE BROS.

The Cream of America's Finest Clothing

MEN'S & YOUNG MEN'S Good Clothes on Credit

We buy from any good house—are not confined to a few brands.

We select the most worthy garments that the big leading makers of the entire country have to offer.

For this reason we sell better clothes and a greater variety than anyone else.

These STANDARD BRANDS are made by the largest, greatest and best high-grade clothing manufacturers of national prominence.

They sell us the same suits they sell to the best cash stores in this city and throughout the United States, with the understanding that we will not advertise these well-known cash store brands or charge any more or less than the regular cash store prices. Nothing but the labels of these well-known STANDARD BRANDS, the same as you will find in the cash stores, are ever attached to any goods sold in our store—or any marks of identification other than what you find in the cash stores.

STANDARD BRAND clothes for men, for which you pay us only cash store prices without interest or any other added extra expense.

$18.50 $20 $22.50 $25

No Money Down
ONLY A LITTLE A WEEK TO PAY

It is not necessary to have the ready cash to open a credit account, if you trade at Boyle Bros.

You are not obliged to make a Big Payment Down when you buy your clothing or other goods on credit from Boyle Bros.

The lack of money no longer compels you to wait until you have saved up a big amount to pay down.

All you have to pay Boyle Bros. is a little each week after you get your clothing. No person can buy goods for cash for less than those who buy here for No Money Down, which is good for anything and everything in our store.

OTHER CREDITABLE CLOTHES

Many other excellent clothes for men in our store from $3.00 to $5.00 less than the above highly advertised national brands. These prices are lower than the usual cash stores charge, as, being manufacturers, we make most of these clothes and save all extra profits for our customers. By buying our Creditable Clothes you get the greatest value there is in Boston. You will get styles that are up to the minute, that have the goods behind them with the wearing qualities, at prices that make them honest value.

$7.50 $9.50 $12.50 $15.50

We guarantee the values at any price you pay. Entire satisfaction in these medium priced suits or your money back.

You will find union-made labels on our clothing and the labels of the best well-known manufacturers of national fame, the same as you find in the cash stores. No other labels are ever attached to any goods sold in our store or any other marks of identification other than what you find in the best cash stores.

No big deposits to pay—No interest—you pay not one cent more when you buy here on credit for a little a week, than if you bought for cash elsewhere.

We guarantee satisfaction in every way by giving you your money back if not pleased with anything you buy in our store.

Our no money down credit system is the simplest, most economical and by far the most convenient method of clothing yourself and family. No big, burdensome payment to make when you buy your clothes, no interest or extra expense of any kind to pay after you buy them—only a "little each week" to pay on the regular cash price and you can dress as well as the "best dressed."

Generous Treatment—The liberality of our terms for payment, the generous treatment we show our customers, and the quality and price of our clothing have never been equalled in this city.

Our splendid method of conducting the credit business assures every customer the most courteous and considerate treatment at all times.

THE LARGEST PRIVATE CREDIT OFFICE in the world. An entire street floor in an adjoining building, away from the salesrooms, devoted exclusively to the privacy of our customers in making office payments, opening accounts and other credit dealings. PRIVATE BOOTHS for all customers.

NEW HAVEN PAID TOP PRICES FOR "PROSPECTS"

MELLEN JUSTIFIES TROLLEY PURCHASES

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Stupendous prices paid by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad for short and poorly equipped lines were justified in view of their potential value by Charles S. Mellen, former president of the New Haven, in his continued testimony before the Interstate Commerce Commission today.

Chief Counsel Folk, for the commission, brought out that the New Haven made a practice of buying branch lines at tremendous prices and operating them at heavy losses, causing a constant drain on the treasury of the parent road.

Among the lines purchased in accordance with this policy were the Rutland railroad, the Buffalo, Rochester & Eastern, and the Tarrytown, White Plains & Mamaroneck, said Mellen. Not one of them has paid so far, he said.

The New Haven's interest in the Rutland road, about 25 per cent., was purchased from the New York Central and the line of questioning brought out the fact that the stock bought by the New Haven at par is now down to a quarter of that price.

Q.—How about the Buffalo, Rochester & Eastern? A.—That was a prospective line. I was against its acquisition.

Q.—Did you pay Gillette for his services in acquiring the line? A.—Not a cent.

Q.—How about the Tarrytown and White Plain Line? A.—The Tarrytown, White Plains and Mamaroneck road had a section at Mamaroneck which we wanted. We bought at public auction for $963,000.

GOOD PROSPECT.

Q.—It cost more to operate than it earned? A.—Yes, because the improvements we made on the road were charged to operation. It was making nothing, but was a good prospect.

Q.—Its value was wholly prospective then? A.—No, it was a real value.

Mellen then stated that it was firm belief that such payments and such operating policies, however much they cost at present, would be justified in the end by increased earnings.

Q.—Could you not have built a new road for less money? A.—New roads have to have franchises. I would rather buy something that others have spent their money on.

Here Folk tried to get the witness to admit that graft had to be distributed to obtain franchises, but Mellen would make only the general reply that "Some one is always in the way and has to be taken care of."

Q.—Why did the New Haven invest in Waterbury Gas stock? A.—Because the company was making over $160,000 a year and we thought it would be a good investment.

Q.—Were there any of the directors of the New Haven personally interested in Waterbury Gas? A.—There may have been one or two who had, but I am sure that if so they had nothing to do with the fact that they voted to buy control from the stock.

Q.—What was the par value of Waterbury Gas? A.—Twenty-five, I think.

Q.—What did you pay for it? A.—Sixty, I think. The records will show.

GAVE 60 FOR IT.

Folk then introduced a letter from I. H. Whittamore, a director in the New Haven, offering to sell his Waterbury Gas stock to the New Haven at 50.

Q.—Why did you buy this stock a month later at 60? A.—Because I did not think it right that a director in the New Haven should buy Waterbury Gas stock when the New Haven itself intended to secure the control of the stock.

Folk then read a letter written by Mellen to Sherman M. Whipple on February 13, 1912, promising to purchase 6,000 shares of the Worcester Railway Investment Company, provided certain legislation passed the Massachusetts Legislature.

Q.—That was the same firm which you purchased the Waterbury Gas stock? A.—Yes, but there was not the least connection between the two transactions.

Q.—What was the legislation referred to? A.—The Western Massachusetts trolley bill.

Q.—Why did you want this bill to go through? A.—It gave the New Haven the right to repurchase the trolleys it formerly owned in Massachusetts. The Worcester Railway Investment Company owned all the capital stock of the Worcester Railway Company. The letter merely stated that if Read & Co. bought the stock within thirty days after the passage of the bill we would buy it at 115.

Q.—Was the advance in price you offered to Read & Co. an inducement to get the legislation through? A.—Well, I don't think it acted as a drag.

ANOTHER HOLDUP.

Q.—Why did you have to pay 115 when the stock was selling at about 105? A.—It was a holdup.

Q.—How was it done? A.—Notice was served on me that the New Haven would have to pay the price demanded (115) in order to get the legislation through.

Q.—Were the transactions with Silliman F. Kelly similar? A.—Why that was a Connecticut trolley matter.

Q.—Was that a holdup, too? A.—Well he got the money.

Q.—Did you pay him $140,000? A.—Probably, if that is what your papers show.

Q.—Did you approve? A.—The money would never have got out if I had not.

Q.—Was this in connection with legislative work? A.—It was not.

Q.—Have you told all you know about this Kelly transaction? A.—Oftentimes some times after one of these sessions I go to bed and think of things which did not occur to me while I was on the stand. I heave a deep sigh, congratulate myself on the fact that I had not thought of them when I would have been compelled to speak my thoughts. Then I turn over and go contentedly to sleep.

Q.—What brokerage firm was Kelly connected with? A.—I believe at the time he was connected with Tucker, Anthony & Co. Your papers will doubtless show.

KEPT PRICE SECRET.

Q.—May's letter to you stated that the matter of the $140,000 paid to Kelly should be kept confidential. Why? A.—He got so much more for his stock than the other stockholders that, of course, he did not want anybody to know about it. If he wanted it kept secret I was willing.

Must Pay Doctor's Bill for Employe

Employers who are insured under the Workmen's Compensation Act are obliged in case of injury to one of their employes to furnish medical treatment for a period of two weeks, according to a decision of the Supreme Judicial Court handed down today. Theodore J. Panansuk was employed at the Taunton Wool Stock Company. He injured his hand. The Industrial Accident Board found he was unable to read and write English and had no knowledge of a notice containing a list of physicians who would furnish free treatment in case of accident. The board gave him $23.94 as compensation and $22.50 for medical attendance. The company's insurer, the American Mutual Liability Insurance Company, objected to bill of medical attendance.

REBELS LAND TROOPS NEAR VERA CRUZ TO ATTACK FEDERALS

BEGIN NEW ADVANCE ON MEXICAN CAPITAL

By CHARLES MICHELSON.

VERA CRUZ, May 22.—The rebels have landed 1,200 men at Vergara, four miles north of Vera Cruz. General Carranza, it is reported from Torreon, has ordered Constitutional troops to press forward against the Federals' outside lines here, and the landing of these troops is believed to be part of the movement.

The Constitutionalist plan is said to be to cut off General Navarette's troops at Tejeria, Cordoba and other stations from our lines, so as to prevent them provoking us to hostilities.

The forces under General Candido Aguilar at Tuxpam have been ordered to lead the attack on the Federals outside here. The 1,200 landed at Vergara are a part of this force.

It appears that with the capture of Tampico the Rebels came into possession of the steamship Yucatan, which was captured by Segura, the bullfighter, and a colonel of the Rebel army.

The Yucatan has arrived just north of Vera Cruz. Aguilar has now a sufficient force for a battle between the lines of the Federals and the American outposts. Rebel activity is reported all over the lower country.

If the Rebels cut in between Vera Cruz and the Federals, the American attitude will be the same as on the Texas border when the Mexicans were battling there—one of neutrality.

Amateur Dancers in Close Fight for Cup At Boston Theatre

There was considerable excitement attending the awarding of the prizes on the fourth day of the dancing carnival at the Boston Theatre, especially in the tango contest, where the fight narrowed down to Miss Dorothy Billings of Arlington with Mr. John Souter of Winchester, and Miss Marion Gibbey of Brookline and Mr. Michael Kenneally of Biddeford, Me. The former couple was given the prize, after the decision had been left to the audience. The contests were decided as follows:

One Step—Mrs. R. Jackson MacDonald of Brookline, and Aubrey Schulman of Cambridge. This couple won the hesitation, Monday. Hesitation waltz—Miss Marion Gibbey of Brookline and Michael Kenneally of Biddeford, Me. Maxixe—Miss Marguerite Mahany of Jamaica Plain and Walter Demelman of Harvard. Tango—Miss Dorothy Billings of Arlington and Mr. John Soutter of Winchester.

Auto News

Seventeen selling agents of the White Company, representing almost as many New England cities, left Boston Thursday afternoon in a special car attached to the "Wolverine," on a trip to the great White factory in Cleveland. Before starting for the West the party was given a luncheon at a Back Bay club by J. S. Hathaway, the company's New England manager. Once in Cleveland the agents will devote their time to a minute study of the methods employed in turning out White cars. They will be the guests of the company, and under the guidance of Walter C. White, vice-president and general manager, will inspect every part of the plant. A special schedule has been arranged for their benefit in order that they may be back at their respective offices next Monday morning. In the party are the following: C. A. Gilmore, H. M. Gordon and William T. Barry of Boston, H. A. Peck of Taunton, W. A. Speare of Manchester, H. I. Cashman of Worcester, Ernest Place of Fall River, H. F. Vesper of Rockland, R. S. Bridge of Pittsfield, J. S. Coy and R. W. Tanner of New Bedford, E. C. Hall of Brockton, J. W. Norcross, Marshall Scott and H. W. Hooker of Springfield, A. C. White, Jr., of Bridgewater and E. A. Sontag of Providence.

President Munroe and Vice-President Fulton of the International Motor Company, spent yesterday in this city as the guests of Norman Halliday, their New England distributor. Both gentlemen are very optimistic as regards the motor truck business, being firmly convinced that the business man of today is keen to take advantage of anything that will be advantageous to him in the conducting of his business affairs. They felt, and rightly so, that the days of experimenting in motor trucks have gone by and that today more than ever the business men as well as the public at large are fully convinced that the motor truck is a thing of utility and something much desired by the successful commercial houses. In speaking of their own affairs the gentlemen gave the information that their actual sales for this season are far ahead of those recorded for the same period of previous years, and are looking forward to still further increases.

Fugitive Accused in $2,000,000 Oregon Land Frauds Held

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.—Reports were received from Los Angeles of the arrest of John Daniel Bentley, the last of a quartet accused of $2,000,000 land frauds in Oregon.

Bentley, who was found working as a cook, was recognized by Postoffice Inspector Webster of Los Angeles from a description sent from the San Francisco office, the chief feature of which was a missing third finger of the fugitive's right hand.

The trio were accused of receiving money for locating would-be settlers on vast tracts of Oregon land to which, as a matter of fact, no title could be given, the ownership being a matter of dispute between the government and the Southern Pacific Railroad.

Women in Federal Army Shoot Like Veteran Soldiers

ESTANCION AMARGOS, Mex., May 22.—Women with the Federal army broke open boxes of ammunition and took the cartridges to the soldiers in the face of the Constitutionalist fire during the battle at Zartuche. Others crouched on the iron roofs of cars, took up the rifles of the wounded and fired with the coolness of veterans.

Several women made a desperate effort to bring a machine gun on one of the flat cars to bear on the Constitutionalist troops, but they could not get it in position.

It is said Bruno did this because the young woman would not run away with him.

BRYAN RENEWS HIS EFFORTS TO LEARN FATE OF SILLIMAN

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Carranza's reported consent to a plan for sending a representative to the Niagara Falls conference, and Secretary Bryan's renewed efforts to learn the fate of John R. Silliman, American vice-consul, who had been held by Huerta soldiers at Saltillo, were absorbing features in the Mexican situation here today.

Before Secretary Bryan resumed communication today with Justice Lamar and ex-Solicitor-General Lehmann, the American representatives at Niagara Falls, he renewed his inquiry for information of Vice-Consul Silliman's whereabouts. Dispatches were sent to the Brazilian legation in Mexico City and to officials at Eagle Pass and Monterey.

Since the South American envoys and the British Embassy here were informed, several days ago, that Silliman had been released and sent on his way to Mexico City for safe conduct to Funston's lines at Vera Cruz, nothing has been heard from him. The lack of rail communication between Saltillo and Mexico City has been suggested as a possible reason for absence of news.

CONFIRM FALL OF SALTILLO: GEN. VILLA TAKES 2,000 PRISONERS

By GERALD BRANDON.

Special Staff Correspondent of the American.

SANTA CATARINA, Neuvo Leon, Mexico, May 22.—General Ortega, chief aide of General Villa, today confirmed the fall of Saltillo to the Constitutionalists. He stated that the Federals, who evacuated the town under the leadership of General Joaquin Maas, are being pursued by rebel forces that were south of Saltillo when the Federals fled.

General Villa has taken more than 2,000 prisoners in his campaign. Most of these have enlisted in the Constitutionalist army, which will use Saltillo as its main base in the campaign against Mexico City.

General Ortega believes that the Federals will make no fight at Saltillo, but will continue their flight to Queretaro and thence fall back upon Mexico City for the final stand.

HUMILIATE HUERTA MEN AT MEDIATION

By LAURENCE TOD.

Special Staff Correspondent of the American.

MEDIATION HEADQUARTERS, Niagara Falls, Ont., May 22.—The spectre of defeat is to sit at the council table with the Huerta delegates in the mediation conferences from this day onward. A crowning humiliation has been thrust upon them by word from Washington that a spokesman for Carranza and Villa will wait in the hotel where the conferences are taking place, and while denying the tottering dictator's delegates the dignity of recognition, will give to the mediators the message of the conquerors.

Today the official representatives of Huerta are imploring their chief in Mexico City to allow them to save something of honor from the impending wreck. They wait for his word that he will resign, and they pray that he may not resign too late.

As soon as Huerta's delegates had scanned today's papers, the telegraph and cable lines were brought into play. The fall of Saltillo, the bloodiest defeat of the Huerta forces at Tepic, the imminent fall of Mazatlan and the investment of Guadalajara convinced them that the end of the de facto government of Mexico is at hand. They then sent urgent messages to their chief.

FATE OF MANY IN BALANCE.

The delegates recognize that in their hands lies the fate and fortunes of thousands of the landed aristocrats of their country.

Luis Elguero, the delegate who possesses 600,000 acres in his own name, is even more anxious than his colleagues that Huerta shall step down and avert a calamity that would establish the peons of Mexico in power.

The mediators representing the three great powers of South America were ready for their second informal conference with the Mexicans as soon as they had breakfasted.

They welcomed the promised arrival of a Constitutionalist agent, expecting him to furnish a clear light on the rising power beyond the Rio Grande. They will seek to learn particularly from the messenger of Carranza to what extent the rebels will carry the spoliation of the great States of the Southern Republic.

LOOK FOR COLLAPSE.

The mediators expect that Huerta's pride will keep up the masquerade of Mexican-American hostility a few days longer—perhaps weeks—but then they look for the collapse. Thereupon they will be ready with a compact to be presented for the acceptance of the Constitutionalists. This will guarantee safety to the Huertistas and arrange an equitable settlement with the peons whom they have robbed.

The South American envoys professes confidence that Carranza and Villa will adopt a reasonable attitude.

They have in their possession a great mass of data on the public and private expressions of the rebel leaders since the beginning of Mexico's factional war. They are serenely confident that the Clentificos will be granted honorable terms as a result of the mediation.

This view is shared by the American delegates. More and more the opinion is developing here that President Wilson and the South Americans will impose upon the Carranza forces a moral obligation for peace that will not be questioned.

EVERYTHING CHANGES, EXCEPT THE DEAR OLD BEACON HILL SENATE

Determined to get rid of the overhead structure of the Boston Elevated Railway, the people of Charlestown will now appeal to the Courts, to have the railroad on stilts condemned as a menace to the public health

* * *

Representative Peter F. Tague of Charlestown, Democratic leader of the House of Representatives, made this declaration today to the AMERICAN.

* * *

The Berenson-Silva bill, providing for the removal of the elevated structure and the substitution of tunnels or subways, was killed in the Senate yesterday by a vote of 15 to 18. It had passed the House of Representatives.

* * *

An incident of the closing day of the battle was the reading of a letter from Mayor Curley, in which the Mayor protested against the passage of the bill on the ground that it would cost the city $14,000,000.

* * *

The Mayor's letter was read by Senator Lombard Williams of Dedham, Republican.

* * *

"And the Mayor," Representative Tague declared today, "was wrong. Experts, in the employ of the Elevated, claim that the total cost of the entire structure is $13,000,000. Our bill would affect about one-quarter of it.

* * *

"The bill would cost the City of Boston nothing. In a dozen years the city would get back in increased taxes every penny expended on the initial work.

* * *

"Besides all that, the bill was safeguarded in every manner imaginable. It carried a referendum to the people of Boston; and, as if that were not enough, it was left to the discretion of the Boston Transit Commission to say whether the work should be started one, two, or three years from now.

* * *

"Charlestown has made a clean and honest fight in the Legislature for redress from a great public wrong. Now, cheered by the finding of former Attorney-General Malone, some years ago, we shall take this nuisance into the Courts. Our district has been a railroad yard long enough. So far as I can learn we have public sympathy and support."

* * *

The killing of the bill was further evidence that the Massachusetts Senate is running true to form.

* * *

How was the trick turned?

* * *

You may have the facts HERE, and you may draw your own conclusions.

* * *

Three Senators who voted FOR the removal of the overhead structures on March 26, and again on March 31, either sat mum in their seats yesterday afternoon when their names [illegible] deaf and dumb men—or strolled about the corridors to get the air.

* * *

These are the three Senators—and observe that they are all Democrats—who favored the Charlestown-South End-Roxbury bill on March 26 and March 31, when apparently it didn't have the ghost of a show, but who rolled over and played dead yesterday when their votes were needed:

JOHN P. BRENNAN OF CAMBRIDGE.
JOSEPH LEONARD OF BOSTON.
JOHN F. SHEEHAN OF HOLYOKE.

* * *

No plea of absence "on account of illness" will save any of these distinguished patriots. ALL OF THEM WERE ON HAND A FEW MINUTES LATER, WITH THEIR VOICES AND THEIR VOTES, ON THE BILL TO INCREASE THE SALARIES OF THOSE OTHER DISTINGUISHED PATRIOTS, THE HONORABLE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSIONERS.

* * *

Nor can they plead that they "didn't know it was coming." The Senate had been stalling along on this Elevated bill for weeks. It had finally been assigned for yesterday.

* * *

So, if you want to know why they ducked at the crucial moment, ask:

JOHN P. BRENNAN OF CAMBRIDGE.
JOSEPH LEONARD OF BOSTON.
JOHN F. SHEEHAN OF HOLYOKE.

* * *

In addition to the three who ducked, there were others who flopped. The floppers voted FOR the bill on March 31 and AGAINST it yesterday.

* * *

These gentlemen, every one of them previously on record as in favor of taking down the overhead structures and substituting tunnels or subways, are responsible for the defeat of the bill.

* * *

It being the happy custom of statesmen hereabouts to quote betimes from the Bard of Avon:

And be these juggling fiends no more believ'd,
That palter with us in a double sense;
That keep the word of promise to our ear
And break it to our hope.

* * *

The petitioners for this take-down-the-elevated bill were Louis Berenson and Francis P. Silva of Charlestown, representing the associated business men and other public-spirited citizens of that community. A hearing was held before the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs.

* * *

The committee report—recommending "leave to withdraw"—was accepted in the Senate by a tie vote.

* * *

Then the report went to the House, where Boston members, led by Representative Tague, overturned the unfavorable recommendation and had the Berenson-Silva bill substituted for it. The House passed the bill by practically a unanimous vote and returned it to the honorable Senate.

* * *

For weeks the Senate hemmed and hawed, and backed and filled, and postponed and postponed again.

* * *

Yesterday they did the trick. The roll call:

FOR THE BILL: Bellamy, James H. Brennan, Burbank, Cox, Doyle, Draper, Fitzgerald, Hickey, Horgan, McCarthy, McGonagle, O'Rourke, Tetler, Timilty and Dean—15.

NO: Bazeley, Boyer, Chase, Clark, Eldredge, Fisher, Gordon, Hilton, Hobbs, Johnson, Langetier, Mack, Nichols, Norwood, Ward, Wells, Williams and McLean—18.

PAIRED: Yes, Bagley; No, Gifford.

ABSENT OR NOT VOTING: John P. Brennan, Leonard, Sheehan and Sibley, all of whom were later recorded on another bill.

* * *

It is always a great relief to turn from the consideration of Senate to House—in Massachusetts as in other States—and no one finds more than merely ordinary pleasure today in saying a good word for a young man who emerged from his law school as recently as 1911.

* * *

The young legislator in question is Representative Leo M. Harlow, of North Easton.

According to the book, Mr. Harlow was born in Boston in 1887.

* * *

Only twenty-seven therefore, Representative Harlow has succeeded in having written into the statute books a bill which, the Governor confessed today, David I. Walsh introduced fully fifteen years ago.

* * *

Annually, from that day to this, members of the Legislature have endeavored to write this bill into the statute books. Leo Harlow's is at last the great accomplishment.

* * *

They call it "An Act Relative to Proof of Contributory Negligence in Actions for the Recovery of Damages for Injuries." It reads:

> In all actions, civil or criminal, to recover damages for injuries to the person or property, or for causing the death of a person, THE PERSON INJURED OR KILLED SHALL BE PRESUMED TO HAVE BEEN IN THE EXERCISE OF DUE CARE, and "contributory negligence," on his or her part, shall be an affirmative defence, to be set up in the answer of, and PROVED BY, the defendant.
>
> The act shall take effect upon its passage, but shall apply only to actions or causes of action hereafter accruing.

* * *

Representatives John L. Glynn of Cambridge and William E. Carney of Charlestown share in the honor which has fallen upon Harlow. Glynn and Carney had introduced bills of the same purport. The Joint Committee on the Judiciary turned all of them down together. The result was that the young legislators got together, decided that the Harlow bill was entitled to right of way, and "went at it" to such good effect that the signature of David I. Walsh is attached to the measure and Leo Harlow is the possessor of the quill with which the bill was signed.

* * *

It is devoutly to be wished that the House will now show its public spirit and kill the pending bill "relative to the inspection of buildings and places where neat cattle, other ruminants or swine are kept."

* * *

This bill prohibits the State Board of Health from inspecting cow barns and cow yards, except in cases of contagious disease.

* * *

It was reported by the Committee on Agriculture. It takes away the only preventive power which the State Board of Health has.

BABY ONE WEEK OLD HAD ECZEMA

On Head and Neck. Kept Getting Worse. Cross and Fretful. Did Not Sleep. Suffered Six Weeks. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured in Two Weeks.

397 Lake St., St. Albans, Vt.—"When my baby was only one week old the back of his head and neck began to look red and swollen. It kept getting worse until the back of his head and neck were just one watery raw sore. The skin around the sores was very red and also inflamed. I think the sores itched and they burned terribly. He was very cross and fretful. He did not sleep only when he had worried himself sick and then he would cry out in his sleep.

"I tried ——— also ——— and I used everything I thought would help it. After he was six weeks old I happened to think of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, so I sent for one cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. I bathed the sores in very hot water and Cuticura Soap and then applied the Cuticura Ointment with a soft cloth. I had used them only two or three times when he was relieved and began to sleep. After two weeks he was cured and the back of his head and neck looked as well as any other baby's." (Signed) Mrs. Joseph Cota, May 5, 1913.

A single cake of Cuticura Soap (25c.) and box of Cuticura Ointment (50c.) are often sufficient when all else has failed. Sold throughout the world. Sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

One lodge night I called Bill up on the 'phone.

"Going to the lodge, Bill?" I asked.

"Nope," said Bill.

"Getting to be regular little home stayer. S'matter, Pop?"

"My wife doesn't want me to go," said Bill.

"Ha," I chortled, "it's a case of henpeck, what?"

"You're wrong," said Bill, "it's a case of

Hampden Ale

and I hate to leave it."

"Good night," says I.

Bill certainly has the right dope on Hampden Ale.

He says it's the smoothest, mellowest stuff that ever came out of a brewery.

Honest, just talking about it has made me Hampden thirsty.

Me for a bottle now.

IT is just the additional little margin that wins, whether in time or toil, in power or in energy, in attention or in earnestness.

You could hardly ask for a better illustration of the truth of the above than is furnished by this Live Store, which grew so quickly to be the largest of its kind in New England—and is still growing.

It's just that little additional margin that has done it—that extra ounce of effort—that doing of everything within our power to please and satisfy our customers.

It's the extra energy we expend in searching the market for the finest clothes produced that makes our stock so attractive.

It's the extra care we take in fitting and suiting our customers that makes them so much better satisfied with buying here.

It's the extra savings we make through spot-cash buying for Seven Great Kennedy Stores at once, through low Summer Street rental and no charge accounts, that enable us to sell the finest clothes at $3 to $5 less than others are obliged to ask.

And for men still addicted to the expensive Washington Street habit, there's only the additional 300 feet to walk to obtain the manifold advantages this Live Store offers to all who want Good Clothes and their money's worth.

Men's and Young Men's Suits

From the Great House of Kuppenheimer

For the sake of the widest possible variety in patterns and models, we carry Good Clothes from many other reputable makers, but we take most pleasure in showing and selling those made by Kuppenheimer, for we know they'll back up the best we can say for them and go far toward making you a loyal and satisfied customer of this great store.

They're always a few paces ahead of the rank and file in style, and are tailored better than oftentimes seems necessary. The fabrics are invariably the purest virgin wool, and imported weaves are much in evidence this season. The finest patterns, the most exclusive shades and colors the world's best looms bring forth are here at these low Kennedy prices.

[illegible] the Resolute in the cup races the Shamrock IV will not [illegible] to beat her but beat her [illegible] two or three minutes, [illegible]

STERN CUT OFF UPRIGHT.

Her overhangings are not excessive [illegible] less than those of the American [illegible] defenders, Vanitie and Defiance. They are about [illegible] divided fore and aft.

The water lines of the boat are [illegible] and the stern cut off with [illegible] at a point where the designer considers additional length to be of no benefit.

Designer Nicholson throughout has paid no attention to beauty, his aim being speed, which he seeks to obtain through the driving power of a big sail spread rather than through fineness of model, for Shamrock IV is decidedly a big bodied boat.

Her [illegible] section shows a fairly flat floor with an easy round to the [illegible] the curve of which is continued right up to the deck, giving [illegible] home to the tops [illegible]

[illegible] a shorter curve from the floor to the [illegible] keel which is apparently [illegible] flat [illegible] the bottom.

A steel [illegible] also be provided [illegible] for the wooden mast, [illegible] the latter proves defective.

[illegible] IV's construction is composite, [illegible] of wood, planked on [illegible] frames, which are in part steel, [illegible] of aluminum.

MAY NOT USE CENTREBOARD.

The planking is of three thicknesses, the two [illegible] running diagonally [illegible] the outer longitudinally.

"I believe," said Mr. Nicholson, "that we have quite as light a hull as if it had been wholly of bronze or other metal, with the additional advantage of [illegible] more elasticity and greater smoothness, as there are no rivet heads showing through."

The centreboard is a thin metal plate housed in a trunk coming well above the cabin floor.

"[illegible]," the designer, "the centreboard is purely experimental. I am not sure that it will prove of any advantage or that we will use it in the cup races."

START TRIP ACROSS JULY 20.

After being [illegible] the 23-metre Shamrock [illegible] will start across the Atlantic [illegible] July 20, according to present arrangements.

"What are her chances of winning?" Mr. Nicholson was asked and his answer to that query was a shrug of his shoulders.

"I have done my best," he said, "and three American designers [illegible] have turned out cup defenders [illegible] done their best, too. Foxhall Keene to Report Polo Struggle for American Readers

THE world of sport is eagerly looking forward to the coming battle for supremacy in polo between America and England, which begins June 9. It is regarded as the greatest event carded for the year, because it will bring together the flower of the thrilling sport of two nations, and upon it depends international honors.

Appreciating the full importance of the struggle, the AMERICAN has induced one of the greatest living experts, Foxhall Keene, to write of the matches in detail for the columns of this paper. Mr. Keene's first article will appear in tomorrow's AMERICAN.

It is unnecessary to tell to you very much about Mr. Keene, for his fame as a polo player, horseman and devotee of all clean sport is world-wide. While giving his attention to almost every line of outdoor sport, polo has always been Mr. Keene's specialty and hobby, and there is no man living who knows any more about the game or is better qualified to write of it.

Harvard Crew Raises Stroke in Trials

The Harvard varsity enjoyed a short workout, devoting most of its time to trying starts and rowing short stretches at a high stroke. Most of the starts were rather successful, although at times there was considerable splashing on the first few strokes.

The men were also coached to get a better hold on the water and not to just skim the blade over the surface of the water as some men are wont to do. There was a noticable improvement in the catch toward the close of the practice. The varsity tried several starts with the "seconds," and just barely won out by a few feet in each one of them.

The annual Carroll cup race was held this afternoon, and was won by L. S. Chandler, '14, in 6:30 over the mile course. Gardiner, '14, was second, being less than a length behind. Both of these men are at present rowing on the varsity crews.

NEARLY NEW.

This description will fit many of the automobiles that are for sale in the "Used Car" columns of the Boston AMERICAN. You can buy one at the price that suits your pocketbook.

MURPHY MEETS MOHR IN BOUT AT CAMBRIDGE

By JACK CONWAY.

EDDIE MURPHY, who spends the greater part of his time in South Boston when he is not pastiming within the hemp ropes, will try and convince New England's fistic lovers this evening that he is master of one Walter Mohr, who hails from Brooklyn. Murphy and Mohr are scheduled to meet in a twelve-round encounter before the University Club in Cambridge, and the gentlemen who occupy ringside seats and smoke big cigars—we don't know where they get them—inform us that the tussle should be a fast and interesting affair.

Murphy has been an idol in South Boston for these many years and when he was matched to clash with Mohr at the Cambridge club several weeks ago his admirers expected that he would breeze in an easy winner. They figured that a nineteen-year-old youth would not have a chance against the Peninsular district's best bet in the ring game.

Mohr, however, must never have attended a college which taught etiquette, for he was so unkind as to hold Edward to a draw. It was a cruel blow to Murphy, but he asserts that he will get sweet revenge tonight. Eddie has been made a 10 to 7 choice in the betting.

MURPHY says that he is in better condition right now than he was when he last fought Mohr. He informs us that he has taken off considerable weight by doing road work at Highland Lake and that he is also boxing every bit as well as when he won his impressive victories over Matty Baldwin, Gilbert Gallant and Joe Eagan at the Atlas A. A.

Joe Eagan, who also resides in South Boston, will hurl a challenge at the winner of tonight's tussle. He believes he would be able to conquer either Murphy or Mohr.

George Freeman, Murphy's manager, stated today that he is willing to match Murphy for a whirl with Eagan provided the weight for the match is 135 pounds. Eagan, on the other hand, wants to fight at 138 pounds.

A GOOD preliminary card has been arranged by Matchmaker Al Morton. Mickey Brown of Malden and Joe Budreau of Somerville will exchange blows in the semi-final match of eight rounds and they are expected to furnish plenty of action. Gus Murphy of Brighton will clash with Jimmy Hanlon of Chelsea in a six-round contest, while Tommy McFarland of Boston will meet Joe Sousa of Cambridge in another six-round contest.

BOB MOHA, who will meet George "Knockout" Brown in a twelve round bout at the Atlas A. A. next Wednesday night, is due to arrive in Boston Saturday. He will complete his training at the Atlas Club and the "fans" will be able to give the Milwaukee "cave dweller" the once over.

Moha has been a busy young man within the hemp ropes during the past month. He defeated Frank Mantell in Milwaukee a week ago Monday, while on the following Friday he gave Al Norton, Billy McCarney's new "white hope," a merry battle in Kansas City.

BROWN will probably arrive in this city next Monday. He weighs 158 pounds and is 5 feet 8 inches tall. He has had two decisions rendered against him. They were in bouts with Jack Dillon and "Sailor" Petrosky. He is a two-handed fighter and has exchanged blows with Jimmy Clabby, Leo Houck, "Buck" Crouse, Frank Klaus, Eddie McGoorty, George Chip, Jack Fitzgerald and "Cyclone" Johnny Thompson.

LOU KELLEY, manager of Joe Farren of East Boston, stated today that he is willing to match his protege against any welterweight in New England. Farren is particularly anxious to get a date with Joe Eagan.

MILTON BOYS VICTIMS

Owing to an outbreak of mumps at the Milton High School, the baseball team has cancelled its game with Mechanic Arts scheduled for Milton tomorrow.

Four of the victims are connected with the ball nine, including Gerald Poole and Reiser, the two best pitchers, the first baseman and manager.

Consequently, Mechanic Arts is left without a game for tomorrow and Manager Rogers would like to get into communication with any fast high school team in the State today. He can be reached by telephone at Back Bay 24636.

Boxing at Olympics Wanted.

NEW YORK, May 22.—The New York State Athletic Commission, through Secretary Charles F. Harvey, has requested the members of the American Olympic Committee to urge the introduction of amateur boxing at the Olympic games to be held at Berlin in 1916.

DARTMOUTH A FAVORITE FOR STADIUM MEET

[illegible] with success of past years, Dartmouth, with two successive wins for the [illegible] of the New England Intercollegiate Athletic Association [illegible] to its [illegible], is confident [illegible] the games, which start [illegible] tomorrow afternoon at the Harvard Stadium, yet another group of prize winning athletes will journey back to Hanover. [illegible] despite the loss at the last moment of two of the team's stars, [illegible]

The preliminary [illegible] this afternoon will be [illegible] weather [illegible] and the Stadium [illegible] splendid shape.

[illegible] the strength [illegible] the association, the other [illegible] their power to such a degree [illegible] Spring that the [illegible] victory credited to the men from Hanover last year should not be repeated.

Whether the star men from the other colleges will prove powerful enough to [illegible] Dartmouth point winners in the trials will be determined this afternoon in the preliminaries. Dartmouth will do its mightiest to jam in as many as it can in every event.

GREAT ENTRY LIST.

The other members of the association who will be represented by four or more men are: Brown, coached by Ed O'Connor; Amherst, by Nelligan; Technology, by Frank Kanaly; Holy Cross, by Bart Sullivan; Tufts, [illegible] Arthur Duffy; Colby, by Harvey; Maine, by Smith; Bates, by [illegible]; Bowdoin, by Jack Magee; [illegible] Smith; Wesleyan, by Hunter; Vermont, by Stone; Williams, by [illegible] and Massachusetts Aggies, by [illegible]

The list of events for this afternoon is 440-yard dash, 120-yard high hurdles, 220-yard dash, 220-yard low hurdles, 880-yard run, putting shot, running high jump, throwing hammer, running broad jump, throwing discus, and pole vault.

So certain are some of the smaller college rooters that Dartmouth's aspirations will be wrecked in certain events that student bodies will accompany many of the teams here.

The meet also offers a chance to compare the three rival Maine colleges. Maine is picked to fight it out with Technology for second place, yet Harvey's men the Colby coach will not concede much to his bitter Pine Tree State rival.

BIG MAINE SCRAP.

Coach Magee of Bowdoin has been unfortunate through the lack of suitable material. Even under this handicap Bowdoin men claim they will give Maine and Colby a close fight, which internal battle lends spice to the highly attractive set of games.

Then, too, Holy Cross is down with a clever bunch of men. Considerable has been written of late about the Tufts team and [illegible] is eager to see what Coach Duffy's men will do in the meet.

The association is likely to have a [illegible] a large part of which will be due to the business efforts of Manager [illegible] H. Briggs in the advance work of the meet.

ORDER OF EVENTS IN STADIUM TRIALS

440-yard dash.
120-yard high hurdles.
220-yard dash.
220-yard low hurdles.
880-yard run.
Putting shot.
Running high jump.
Throwing hammer.

Market Nines Play for Title May 30

The baseball championship of the market district will be settled on May 30, when the Batchelder & Snyder team will meet the N. [illegible] Robbins nine at Franklin Field. The Robbins lineup is made up of some of the best players around the market, including Coughland, first base, [illegible] shortstop, Garrity, second [illegible] Roach, Scannell, third base, [illegible] outfielders. [illegible] team is being coached by Joe Toomey, the ex-high school [illegible]

BRAVES' VICTORY OVER CUBS BIG JOKE FOR EVERS

CHICAGO, Ill., May [illegible].—Johnny Evers, the former [illegible] is the [illegible] guest [illegible] Chicago today. The Boston Braves, of which team he is now a [illegible], defeated his former teammates in the opening game of the season between the two teams, by the score of 3 to [illegible], and the former Cub star says the [illegible] will repeat the dose [illegible].

John [illegible] in the first inning of the game and [illegible] never [illegible]. The Braves scored two in the first and then [illegible].

"[illegible]," Say, John [illegible] pleased [illegible] he was on the [illegible] that President Gaffney handed him [illegible] check for all the [illegible].

Beat the Cubs. That is the [illegible] tion of Johnny [illegible] At that John is [illegible]. He doesn't know whether to condole with or congratulate Hank O'Day.

READY FOR SECOND BATTLE.

It will be remembered that the former umpire succeeded Johnny as manager of the Cubs. And Hank has had his troubles ever since. For proof look at the league standing.

But this is another day. Dick Rudolph is the man picked to work against the Cubs [illegible]. That is, he was the first choice, although there was always the chance that the manager at [illegible] would be changed. That is one of his rights, you know.

Hank O'Day had [illegible] to send Jim Vaughn to the [illegible]. [illegible] is a southpaw and has been going like a house afire his last few times out. In his last two battles he has allowed just four hits. Quite a fast pace, it is.

The Chicago fans are wondering. They were led to believe that the Braves were the easiest kind of picking and there wasn't a question about the Cubs grabbing at least three and maybe all of the games of this series.

HOW THE WORM TURNED.

The odds were [illegible] to [illegible] on the Cubs before that first game. Cheney, the star, was scheduled to start and did step on the mound. It was figured that the Braves couldn't win oftener than once a week and they had won this week's game.

Then the worm turned. The infield work was like lightning. The supposedly weak outfielders covered all sorts of territory. Tyler pitched magnificently and the fellows hit. The score just about represents the difference in play.

Astonished and astounded. The Cubs are all of that. But they point to the league standing and claim it can't last, that the Braves traveled far ahead of their real form. Which difference of opinion is what will cause the fans to surrender their speckles this afternoon.

JAKE DAUBERT IS STARTING OFF THIS season as if he intends to carry off another batting championship. In his first seventeen games Jake gathered twenty-five hits for an average of .391.

SEVERAL NEW PLAYERS ARE SLATED to join the St. Louis Federals. Manager Brown is far from satisfied with his team and Scout Jack O'Connor has been working overtime to [illegible] the weak spots.

RED SOX HAVE WORK CUT OUT IN GAME TODAY

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

The White Sox are the first club of American League players that have taken an opening game from the Red Sox in some time. Since returning to Fenway Park, Carrigan's crew won the first two from New York, the first two from St. Louis and the first three from Detroit.

The Chicago team is only here for three days and the way things look our fellows will have to hustle to take two out of three. We may expect Eddie Cicotte to pitch on Saturday, unless Callahan sends him [illegible] afternoon, [illegible] it is expected that "Dutch" Leonard will work for Boston, even though he pitched an inning yesterday.

Carrigan has plenty of good pitchers ready for the word, but is [illegible] better fixed in this respect than the White Sox, who have seven first-class twirlers in the pink of condition.

The locals couldn't do [illegible] with Benz in the first clash. On the other hand, Rankin Johnson was [illegible] spots. Rankin made a great hit by defeating Walter Johnson. He looks like he had the goods in spite of the [illegible]-2 beating [illegible] registered against him [illegible] Chicago.

Big Ed Walsh is with the Chicago outfit, but he will not be seen in the box here unless something very [illegible] expected happens. Bill Gleason, Manager Callahan's right hand man, believes the celebrated artist will come around all right in time. It will be recalled that Walsh did little or no work last season for his team.

STAR MATCHES IN WOODLAND CUP TOURNEY

WOODLAND CUP MATCHES TODAY.

N. W. Dean vs. A. L. Carr.
C. A. Hartwell vs. B. S. Evans.
C. P. Whorf vs. W. Hickox, Jr.
W. S. Martin vs. W. E. Sibley.
C. L. Brocker vs. B. W. Godsoe.
J. A. Wheeler, Jr., vs. V. S. Lawrence.
J. D. Standish, Jr., vs. J. H. Sullivan.
J. Guilford vs. winner of play-off.

There should be some good golf at Woodland today in the opening round of the annual three-day Spring meeting. All of the favorites qualified for first honors in [illegible] field of 1[illegible]7 and [illegible] is to be regretted that the first round brings together the [illegible] J. H. Sullivan, Jr., and J. D. Standish, Jr., the Michigan State champion, at the outset.

Standish defeated Sullivan at the Country Club last week but the contest was a good one.

The winners of this match will probably meet Jesse Guilford, the youthful State champion of New Hampshire, and this means another feature match at the beginning of the tourney.

V. S. Lawrence is very apt to get into a semi-finalist position in the lower half, where the chances of B. S. Evans, Brocker and W. Hickox, Albemarle [illegible] former winner of [illegible] look good to the upper [illegible] bets.

$35,000 for Ritchie.

CHICAGO, May 22.—Willie Ritchie, [illegible] champion lightweight, has received [illegible] that London promoters have accepted his terms for a match in the British capital with Freddie [illegible] the English fighter. His terms included a guarantee of $1[illegible] [illegible] of the gross [illegible] $1[illegible] for [illegible] advertising and $11,000 for the moving picture privileges [illegible] been set.

Buffeds Anxious to Corner Groh

BUFFALO, May [illegible].—The Buffalo Federal League club is making strenuous efforts to corral Heinie Groh of the Giants for its infield, it was learned today. Word received from Cincinnati [illegible] that a representative of the [illegible] has been in conference [illegible] for the past two days [illegible] the crack infielder is wavering. [illegible] Buffalo club offers Groh [illegible] for three years of $1[illegible] [illegible] year.

Braves and Federals Clash in Brooklyn

NEW YORK, May 22.—The first conflicting date scheduled for the Superbas and Brookfeds at home is June 1, when the Boston Braves will appear at Ebbets Field while the Baltimore Terrapins are disporting themselves at Washington Park. Five more outfits follow in a row, after which there will not be another clash until July 25, when the Cincinnati Reds and the Chifeds will be the rival attractions in Brooklyn.

Poor Showing in Yale Meet Causes "H" Track Shift

Harvard's track team will be rearranged for the intercollegiates which start at the Stadium a week from today. MacLure, who has been competing in the mile run, will be groomed for the two-mile event.

In the dual meet with Yale three Yale men, Porcher, Smith and Hart [illegible] beat the Crimson man in the [illegible] and Coach Donovan has decided to use him in the two-mile race.

Brodie, who has been tried in the dash, furlong and quarter, has not shown enough class in these events to satisfy the coach and he will be trained for the half mile race.

CHAPTER VII

Ethel Meets Chester Thorne

MARTIN, after a great deal of coaxing, had at last persuaded Ethel to remain with him for the time being, but times were hard and Ethel had not been with him so very long before the rent was due again, and Martin did not have enough to pay it. The old man dreaded to tell Ethel this for fear she would leave, and so dispatched a note to Rogers without telling her anything about it. The girl was in the garden when Rogers drove up in the machine, and at the sight of her the man almost grew livid with rage.

"So this is your game, my lady," he snarled between his teeth. "Well, we'll see how long you'll continue to pull the wool over my eyes," and then as Martin appeared, "no wonder you didn't have enough money for the rent, you old scoundrel. Well, you can hand over everything you owe me right now, or else send the girl packing and I'll give you another chance."

Ethel stared at him as though hardly comprehending what he said, and then she realized that Martin was looking at her beseechingly, and with a cry she flung up her hands as though to ward off a blow—the full significance of the thing had swept over her at last. She looked from one to the other for a moment, and then turning from them she started to run, anywhere to get away from the sight of Rogers and those evil, coldly staring eyes.

What was there to live for, anyway, she thought as she ran out into the fields and then away toward the river. The river, why hadn't she thought of that before? Just a moment on the edge of the bank, she hung back as though undecided as to what to do, and then, with a hopeless little shrug of the shoulders, she plunged into the dark cool water.

IN THE RIVER

When she came to the surface for the first time she fought desperately for breath. "Oh, God, I don't want to die," she breathed. "Save me, O, somebody help me!" A little ahead of her was a pleasure yacht, a very tiny one, filled with merrymakers, if she could only make some of them hear, but her strength was fast leaving her, and it took every effort that she had to keep afloat, for her clothes were heavy against her.

"Help!" she screamed again, putting all the strength she possessed into that one cry, and a little group of women standing on deck turned as the noise echoed out across the water.

"Some one is drowning," said one of them excitedly. "Quick, Chester, or some of you, we must do something." They all thronged to the end of the boat, and like a shot one of their number dived neatly over the side and made for the dark head bobbing up and down upon the waters. Ethel was unconscious when he reached her, and it was easy work to paddle back with her limp figure over his arm. She was handed over to the women, who soon revived her, but she refused to tell them any reason for her dip in the river. She thanked Chester languidly for his timely rescue, and asked if they would put her ashore somewhere. They all looked at each other. The girl was wet through and had apparently no place to go. What was to be done?

"I live quite near here," said Chester suddenly. "Perhaps you will go home with me until your clothes can be dried." And as Ethel seemed too weak to make any objection the two were landed at a point near by, and in a few minutes Chester had handed the girl over to his mother, who promptly put her to bed. Mrs. Thorne went into ecstasies over the girl, her slim hands and feet, the proud tilt of her little dark head.

"She is lovely," she said to Chester somewhat later. "She must stay with us at least for a time. You won't mind very much, will you, dear? It won't really make any difference with anything you have planned, and it will give me something to think about." And Ethel stayed, and Mrs. Thorne fell more deeply in love with her every day, to say nothing of the progress her son made in that direction.

THE TRAMP

One day Ethel, romping like a child in the garden, came upon an old tramp, who asked her timidly for food. She took him around to the back door and brought him a plate of food, which he ate greedily while the girl looked on, and later he was put to work about the grounds of the great house, much to Ethel's satisfaction. She called him her tramp, and laughingly told Chester that she felt personally responsible for him. Had she but known, this same old tramp was to do her the greatest favor of her life some day not so very far off.

"Ethel," said Thorne suddenly, as they strolled back to the house from the barn, where they had left the old man asleep in the hay. "Do you know that you have never properly thanked me for saving you from the briny deep?"

Ethel looked up at him, the pupils of her eyes darkening quickly. "I never wanted to talk about it," she said, hardly above a whisper, "and now I don't know what you want me to say."

"I don't want you to say anything," he said passionately, "giving me what I want will do." He paused, his voice suddenly husky with emotion. "Just you is what I want. Is the reward too great?" And then without waiting for her answer she was in his arms, his lips against her throat.

Later on, in the garden, Mrs. Thorne surprised their secret on their guilty faces. Chester had claimed his reward, but she was to have what she had always wanted, a daughter of her own.

Mabel Herbert Urner's Great Series:

Their Married Life

Helen Has Real Sympathy with the Weakly, Yielding Nature of Another Woman

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

"WHO?" Helen repeated it sharply.

"Miss Wilson, ma'am," the hallboy's voice blurred through the phone.

"Oh, Miss WILSON!" with a pleased note of recognition. "Send her right up."

A moment later Nora ushered in a young woman in a plain blue serge suit that just escaped being shabby.

"Why, Laura, what's happened?"

"You're not very cordial," cynically. "I'm making an afternoon call. It's Saturday, you know. Even a fifteen-dollar stenographer can make an occasional call on Saturday."

Helen made her comfortable on the couch with a couple of pillows, then drew up a chair beside her and waited for the confidence that she knew would come.

For a moment Laura leaned back with closed eyes as though it was good just to relax. Then she threw out her arms with a nervous, desperate gesture.

"Oh, it isn't fair! It isn't FAIR! There isn't anything fair about it!"

"Is it about your work?" gently.

Laura nodded. "Oh, I've been such a fool—such a consummate little fool! I had a chance to leave, to get more money and less work—and I didn't do it. I let Mr. Richards persuade me into staying."

"But aren't they going to give you more? You said you thought they would this Spring."

HER PROMISE

"Not a cent. He won't even get a girl in to help me. I've been doing all my own work and Miss Lang's, too, since she left. I'm killing myself there," desperately, "and yet I've promised to stay!"

"But why, if you had another offer?"

"Why? I don't KNOW why!" excitedly. "I must have been insane. I went into his private office this morning to say that I was going to leave, but when I came out I'd promised to go on without a cent increase. Oh, it makes me WILD to think about it!"

"Did you tell him about the other offer?"

"Yes; but he said I'd never be happy in a big office. I wouldn't have the independence. I'd have more people over me, and he knew I'd regret changing."

"Then, if he's so anxious to keep you, why doesn't he give you more?"

"He says they can't afford it," bitterly; "that business is bad, that the war's upsetting everything. But if I'll stay on until things are better"——with a skeptical shrug.

"What will he pay you then?"

"He didn't say. He didn't commit himself in any way. I'm just to go on and leave it to his generosity to do whatever he pleases. Oh, he simply wound me around his finger!"

"When did all this happen—to-day?"

"Just before we closed—at 1 o'clock. I went in to give him a week's notice; to say that unless he could pay me more I was ging with Briggs & Carter. Oh, I don't know HOW he did it, but he somehow made me feel that I'd better stay where I was. I'd left the office before I realized how weakly yielding I'd been. Then I began to think of the things I'd meant to say. I'd made up a little speech before I went in, but somehow I didn't say it."

"One never does," nodded Helen understandingly.

"Oh, it's all so unfair! They've never appreciated my work. I've stayed after hours, I've gone without luncheon. I've brought work home and they've taken it all for granted. They'll never get any one else to do the work in that office for the salary they're paying me. Before I got home I was wild at myself for having promised to stay. And then"—she leaned back with a satirical smile—"just what do you think I did then?"

A SUDDEN IMPULSE

"Something impulsive and foolish, of course."

"I stopped in a drug store and called him up! I said I hoped he wouldn't think me whimsical, but that after all I felt I COULDN'T go on, that the work was too hard, that——Oh, I was excited, I don't remember just how I put it."

"Well?" Helen leaned forward tensely.

"Oh," with a hysterical laugh, "I ought to be in an institution for the feeble-minded."

"You don't mean you let him persuade you again?"

Laura nodded. "He didn't have to persuade me. He just said coldly that I must do as I chose, that if I wished to change my mind again that was my privilege—a sort of washing-his-hands-of-the-whole-affair air. Somehow he made me feel so small that I ended by almost reasuring him I'd be glad to stay. Oh, I know you can't understand how any one COULD be such an idiot!"

"Yes, I can," mused Helen; "that's the woman of it—the fear of displeasing the man. I don't care what man it is, if he's at all forcible he can always dominate a woman just by making her feel that she mustn't displease him."

"That's it," Laura caught at the phrase, "that's just what I felt—that I mustn't displease him! And before I hung up the phone I was almost abject for having disturbed him again." She clenched her hands. "Oh, WHY am I always so weak? Why do I always back down?"

"Don't fear, don't get all worked up. It won't help."

"Oh, but Im consumed with rage at myself. I had a chance to tell him about all the extra work I've been doing—and I didn't. While he was talking he almost made me feel that my work was easy, that I was being well paid for it, and that he was surprised that I was dissatisfied!"

MAN, POOR MAN!

"That a man's privilege—to make a woman always feel that she's in the wrong.

"Any body can put me in the wrong I can never argue—I can never tell my side of a thing well. If I had solid gold bars to sell, any one who's clever could make me feel they weren't worth much, and that I'd bettel let them go for the price of brass. Oh, it isn't fair, it isn't FAIR!"

"Dear, you'll only make yourself sick. Try not to dwell on it. You can't afford to waste your energy this way. Wait, let me get you a glass of sherry."

When Helen returned with the sherry, Laura was leaning back with closed eyes, her utter weariness showing in every line of her face.

"I'm worn out—I know I am. Last night going home I thought I'd faint in the subway. I've worked till half past six almost every day this week—they don't APPRECIATE it! No matter how much extra work I do—they take it all for granted!"

She rose and put down the empty glass with a gesture of despair.

"Oh, I didn't know it was so late—it's almost six. Well," bitterly, "I suppose I'll go home now and brood over it all night—and all day tomorrow. How I dread Sunday!"

Again her hands clenched, as her mind went back to its grievance. "I put so much of myself into my work—that's why it hurts so when they don't appreciate it. Oh, it isn't——

"Now don't begin that again," pleaded Helen. "And you're not going home to brood over a lonely restaurant dinner," as Laura started to draw on her gloves. "You're going to stay right here and have dinner with us."

"Oh, I'd love to, but Mr. Curtis, you know. I always feel——"

"That's foolish. Warren would like to have you. Wait, there he is now," as they heard the hall door open and close.

Helen ran out into the hall and greeted Warren with an eager, whispered:

WARREN TO THE RESCUE

"Dear, Laura Wilson's here! She's fearfully blue and discouraged about her work. I'm going to make her stay for dinner, and don't you want to take us to the theatre or somewhere afterward? If she goes home now she'll just brood herself sick."

"Sure," cheerfully. "Wouldn't mind seeing a good show myself tonight."

"Oh, you DEAR! You're always so generous." Helen drew him back into the shadow of the hall, where she kissed him purringly. "Dear, we have so much and she has so little—let's give her a very wonderful evening."

"Fine! We'll cheer her up." Then breaking away from her he strode into the front room, where he greeted Laura cordially.

"Oh, no, no," she protested feebly. "I'm too disagreeable and morose to inflict myself on any one this evening. You'd better let me go home and brood it out alone."

"Nonsense, you come right along with us," insisted Warren heartily. "We'll take in a good show. None of those sobby problem plays, but a corking good comedy. That'll set you up."

A Grizzly Bore

It was probably only Robinson's wealth that had allowed his intrusion in the very select shooting party. He was certainly quite the worst shot that had ever happened in the neighborhood, and everyone was determined after the first day that either he should retire or that on the morrow he should have the moors to himself. Blissfully unconscious of the impression he had produced, he was talking very big after dinner.

"By Jove, yes!" he remarked, in reminiscent mood. "In my young days I brought down a grizzly in the Rockies. They told me it was the biggest they had ever seen."

His host leaned forward very quietly.

"You don't say so," he observed, with glassy eye. "And what were you aiming at?"

-:- The Secret of "Looking Well Dressed" -:-

As Told by Ivy Troutman, Who Always Looks Smart Herself

By MAUDE MILLER

"I HAVE always prided myself on never having hobbies," said statuesque Ivy Troutman, of "A Pair of Sixes." As she spoke she pulled a white hat down over one eye and smiled at herself gaily in the mirror. "And as for beauty, I think people allow their thoughts to dwell upon it entirely too much. If they would only realize that beauty speaks for itself, and that if a person is not intended to be beautiful all the beauty hints in the world will never do the least bit of good, what a lot of unnecessary worry would be eliminated.

"But I believe that a person can always make the best of an appearance, and for that reason I have studied out the vlue of gowns so that I can tell in a moment just what suits me and just what I could never attempt in the way of dress. I am wildly, extravagantly vain about my gowns, but I have always found it to pay in the end, because I never have a thing on hand that I am not passionately fond of, and therefore I wear my clothes until they are almost ready to fall off.

"I never wear a gown that hasn't been explicitly planned for me. The woman who goes to a store to buy her clothes ready made simply because she is too lazy to plan out things for herself, deserves to look unattractive. A sudden violent desire for a thing utterly unsuited to one's appearance should never in the world be acted upon. Clothes should never be bought hastily. A woman should take plenty of time to deliberate over everything she ever puts on; it pays in the end; and if her clothes are made for her, and her alone, she is a well dressed woman, because everything has its definite place upon her person.

"I have found out a very important detail in my study of dress, one that will make a gown count in every sense of the word. Always aim at the picturesque, but leave the bizarre out of the question. There are some few women in the world who can stand the bizarre touch in their outfits, some few who can actually afford to be eccentric and not suffer in consequence. But the great majority of women look better in the softer, more undecided fashions, and unless a woman can be assured by some one whose taste can be relied upon that her style is such that she can wander off the beaten track to any marked extent, it would be better for her not to try anything too different.

"Every woman should study dress both for making the most of herself and for making a good impression on others. The badly groomed woman is now a thing of the past; the modern woman studies her wardrobe as she would anything else. She makes it a part of her everyday life, and it is well that it should be so."

Charming Ivy Troutman

The Manicure Lady

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"I WAS reading a story in a magazine last night," said the Manicure Lady, "and after I had got all through reading it I remembered that I had read it a month before. Wasn't it funny that I didn't know it sooner?"

"I don't know," said the Head Barber. "I ain't much of a hand to read magazine stories no more. All of them sounds about alike to me. I got into the notion lately of reading some of them novels which was wrote by the old timers and they seem like the real thing. I don't see why they can't write stories like that any more, but they don't seem to make much of a stab at it."

"That is what father was saying last night," said the Manicure Lady. "I don't know how the old gent managed to find the time away from his speedy old friends, but some time or other in his life he read all of them old classical novels and stories, and you can't get him to go to none of them magazine stories now. He says he can read the old masterpieces over again and again, and they seem new every time. I don't know whether the old gent's memory is getting a little dull, or whether they do seem new every time anybody reads them. Father says you can read the average magazine story over and over again, too, and it will seem new, because there ain't nothing startling enough in them stories to remember a week.

"Wilfrid hollers a good deal about the modern fiction, too, but nobody up to the house pays any attention to him, because he has had so many stories refused by the magazines that we figure it is more jealousy than anything else with him. He has got a kind of notion in his head that if he had been living at the same time as Dickens and Scott and them old stars he could have got acquainted with them and studied their style, and maybe been an immortal writer himself; but, as there ain't no way of proving it, that will always be a question. Personally, I don't think he would have stood a ghost of a show, any more than he does now.

"I was reading somewhere about a college professor who says we have greater story writers now than they ever had in the old days, but if we have them they must be practicing law or doing chores on a farm somewhere. Anyhow, they ain't writing any of their stories that can hold a candle to the great stories of Sir Walter Poe and Edgar Allen Dickens. I read all of them when I was at school, and I ain't forgot them yet."

"I only read one of Poe's stories," said the Head Barber, "and it gave me the horrors. It was about a black cat, and I haven't ever saw a black cat since that I didn't feel like going in somewhere and getting a big slug of brandy to steady my nerves. I don't like that kind of stories. After a fellow has made and lost about ten bets on the horses he wants to read something cheerful and full of fun. There is grief enough in these diggings without readin about more of it."

"But it took a great mind to imagine all them things," declared the Manicure Lady. "If we didn't have imagination there couldn't be no great stories wrote, and even if they could be wrote we wouldn't be able to understand them. That is one thing, George, that I can say for myself without bragging—I am there powerful with the imagination. I think it is a kind of a gift."

"I ain't much on imagination," said the Head Barber. "If I was once in awhile I could imagine which horse was going to win."

Concerning the Funds

In answer to a timid knock at his door old Mr. Mumble went to see who his caller was. He beheld a small, frightened-looking youth with a big book in his hand.

"P-please, sir, will you subscribe to the Fighters' F-football Club?"

"Good gracious me! You're the thirteenth boy who has called tonight for money!"

"Y-yes, sir; we all d-does it!"

"What, all go to the same people?"

"Yes, p-please, sir. It's the rules as s-says we 'as to; that's 'ow it is, you see, sir!"

"Why, what do the rules say?"

"'Ere you are, sir—on this paper, sir! 'Them as gets most money plays in the first team; them as d-don't doesn't!'"

A Message to Thin, Weak, Scrawny Folks
An Easy Way to Gain 10 to 30 Lbs. of Solid, Healthy, Permanent Flesh
Thin, nervous, undeveloped men and women everywhere are heard to say, "I can't understand why I do not get fat. I eat plenty of good, nourishing food." The reason is just this: You cannot get fat, no matter how much you eat, unless your digestive organs assimilate the fat-making elements of your food instead of passing them out through the body as waste.
What is needed is a means of gently urging the assimilative functions of the stomach and intestines to absorb the oils and fats and hand them over to the blood, where they may reach the starved, shrunken run-down tissues and build them up. The thin person's body is like a dry sponge—eager and hungry for the fatty materials of which it is being deprived by the failure of the alimentary canal to take them from the food. The best way to overcome this sinful waste of flesh building elements and to stop the leakage of fats is to use Sargol, the recently discovered regenerative force that is recommended so highly by physicians here and abroad. Take a little Sargol tablet with every meal and notice how quickly your cheeks fill out and rolls of firm, healthy flesh are deposited over your body, covering each bony angle and projecting point. Your druggist has Sargol, or can get it from his wholesaler, and will refund your money if you are not satisfied with the gain in weight it produces, as stated on the guarantee in each package. It is inexpensive, easy to take and highly efficient.
CAUTION—While Sargol has produced remarkable results in overcoming nervous dyspepsia and general stomach troubles, it should not be taken unless you are willing to gain ten pounds or more, for it is a wonderful flesh-builder.

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular and inclined towards a lower level from the opening until afternoon. There was not much volume to business, and locally there were signs of renewed liquidation. Early in the afternoon in New York gains included Chesapeake & Ohio 1¼, Canadian Pacific, which had been in demand in Berlin, ⅝; Reading ⅜, Lehigh Valley ⅛, and Union Pacific ¼. Among declines were Missouri Pacific ½, American Telephone ⅛, American Can ⅜, Steel ⅛, Northern Pacific ¼ and Baltimore & Ohio ¼. Amalgamated was unchanged.

In Boston United Fruit was off 3½ at 150½. It had touched 150. Two shares of Boston & Maine sold as low as 37. By afternoon it was up to 38 and then off 3½. New Haven was down ⅜ and Elevated 1. Other declines included Calumet & Arizona ½, Granby ¼ and North Butte ¼. Massachusetts Gas had gained ¼.

IRREGULAR AT THE START.

Irregularity featured the New York list at the opening, and the market was very quiet then and afterward. Business for the first hour totaled about 46,000 shares. The fact that Chesapeake & Ohio directors had declared the usual dividend helped that issue. It made a good gain around the start, but there was not much business in rails as a class, sentiment being more bearish as regards them. This was in a measure due to Mellen testimony before the Interstate Commerce Commission concerning New Haven affairs. While that road in particular appeared little affected as to price, traders said that what had been disclosed tended to diminish confidence in railroads in general. Americans were irregular in London today, with most of them on the recessional side. New York exchange on London, which touched 4.8910 yesterday, was quoted at 4.8865 today. Further exportation of gold is expected at New York. It is estimated that from $50,000,000 to $75,000,000 will leave these shores for Europe before the movement is over.

PRICE RANGE VERY NARROW

Up to afternoon the price range was very narrow and in the instance of most issues without any significance. Reports from Europe were rather depressing. It is stated that before the end of July the French government will issue bonds to the amount of $300,000,000 on a 4 per cent. interest basis and that this is having adverse effect upon the stock market in Paris. The Bank of France reports a gain of more than $5,000,000 in gold within a week. Paris is going to get $2,000,000 more from New York and it is cabled from London that bankers in the latter city expect to draw the yellow metal freely from this side. About $25,000,000 has been shipped or engaged in New York for Europe, so far this year.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIO DIVIDEND.

Chesapeake & Ohio rise brought out considerable of that stock and bears said that the dividend reduction was only delayed. They predicted a cut in the rate at the end of the next quarter. Less attention was given to Missouri Pacific today. One statement read: "Deposits of notes are being made slowly, holders not being strongly attracted by plan for extension at higher rate of interest, and with an increase of collateral."

UNITED FRUIT WEAKENED.

United Fruit weakened more today, the decline in that issue being one of the most interesting events in the Boston market. A local financial publication quotes a broker as saying: "Some one has United Fruit for sale whenever there is a market to take it. Selling from this source appeared at today's opening, then traders in general sold carrying the stock down to 150."

Boston & Maine was another issue to sag. It sold down to 37. Its lowest price last year was 35. It opened off a half point, and continued the descent upon odd lot transactions. It was said that Mellen disclosures had caused a resumption of liquidation by small stockholders. Other reasons assigned for the slump are that there has been poor response to note extension proposals, and that there is apprehension that an asessment may be made to put the road on a sound financial basis. Local trading was dull and the list irregular.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

Chesapeake & Ohio directors have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1 per cent. Fear that it be reduced or passed caused pressure on the stock recently.

For April the operating revenues of the New Haven road decreased $206,000 and net revenue increased $34,000.

Lehigh Valley reports for April decreases of $155,678, in gross, and of $17,876 in net. For ten months, gross decreased $2,859,162, and net $2,243,913.

The London copper warrants market was easy this morning and by noon spot and futures were each off 5s.

It is announced that the Wells-Fargo Express Company will take over the entire business of the United States Express Company at midnight on June 30.

Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance Co.

A quarterly dividend of $2.00 per share on par has been declared on the stock of the Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance Co., payable June 1, 1914, to stockholders of record May 23, 1914.

JOHN T. BURNETT, Treasurer.

NO. 20

ATTENTION, MAYOR CURLEY!

If you had made as good a contract for the people of Boston with the Electric Light Company as the City of Augusta, Ga., made with its Electric Light Company, Boston would save about one million, two hundred and thirty-eight thousand dollars during the period of the contract which you wish to foist upon Boston. This great sum saved by the city would give more than ONE THOUSAND, SIX HNUDRED AND FIFTY WORKMEN A FULL YEAR'S EMPLOYMENT.

Would you have been elected Mayor, Mr. Curley, if you had told the people of Boston that you considered the 12 per cent. dividends of the Edison Electric Light Company more sacred than the bread and butter of the clerks, the laborers, the police, the firemen, the nurses, the matrons employed by the city, whom you have reduced or discharged, or more sacred than the pleasure and health which the citizens obtain from their parks and public buildings which your FALSE economy tends to cripple?

The AMERICAN Hopes That District Attorney Pelletier Is Noting Mr. Mellen's Testimony

He May Find That the Revelations Concerning the American Express Company Contract with the Boston & Maine Give Him a Chance to Proceed on a Charge of Criminal Conspiracy

The AMERICAN calls the attention of District Attorney Pelletier to the testimony of Mr. Mellen before the Interstate Commerce Commission concerning the American Express Company contract. If the statute of limitation has not run upon this transaction, it may be that Mr. Pelletier will find that it involved a criminal conspiracy against the stockholders of the Boston & Maine Railroad by Directors Richard Olney, Lewis Cass Ledyard, Henry M. Whitney and others, who represented, directly or indirectly, the American Express Company on the board of directors of the Boston & Maine.

For several years the Boston AMERICAN has been calling public attention to the contract which the American Express Company forced upon the Boston & Maine, by which, as the AMERICAN has reiterated over and over again, the poor Boston & Maine was being robbed of more than seven hundred thousand dollars a year.

The story of this evil transaction the AMERICAN has told repeatedly, and Mr. Mellen, in his testimony before the Interstate Commerce Commission, now confirms, to the last detail, the allegations concerning this transaction which the Boston AMERICAN has so frequently made.

The contract now existing between the Boston & Maine and the American Express Company was entered into just before the American Express Company sold out its great block of Boston & Maine stock to the New Haven Railroad, and was made in anticipation of the incoming control of the New Haven. The old contract had still several years to run. It was a bad contract, but was not so bad at the time it was originally made.

Lewis Cass Ledyard, Richard Olney, Henry M. Whitney and several others represented, directly or indirectly, the American Express Company on the directorate of the Boston & Maine. Mr. Mellen testified as follows:

> "I would not have made such a contract, for the New Haven was getting 45 per cent. of the receipts of the express business under its contract with the Adams Express Company. I would not have signed a contract which gave the Boston & Maine only 35 per cent. of the express receipts. But I was willing that Mr. Ledyard would relieve me of the responsibility before I took hold of the Boston & Maine. I was glad to dodge it."

Mr. Mellen admits that the Boston & Maine, staggering on the very verge of bankruptcy, has lost eight million dollars in the last ten years under this contract. The Interstate Commerce Commission has found that on the basis of the contracts between the express companies and the railroads, the Boston & Maine loses $712,000 a year. This is 2 per cent. upon the capital stock of the Boston & Maine, which now pays no dividends at all.

Richard Olney was a PARTY to this transaction. Mr. Olney has been a PARTY to EVERY ONE of the wretched performances which have brought the Boston & Maine to its present pitiable state, in which those who hold its stock have found their property nearly wiped out, and those who live on its lines have found its service nearly destroyed.

It is not giving us so good service today as it was twenty years ago, in spite of the advancement in the arts and sciences, in spite of the improvement of rails and the enormous increase in the power of engines and all that inventive genius and the progress of the times have given us. Dishonesty and incompetency have robbed the public, the investor, the business man and the passenger of all the advantages of advancing civilization as it touches the railroad concerns.

This is the SAME RICHARD OLNEY who, while Attorney-General of the United States, dealing with the railroads throughout his incumbency of that office, advised President Cleveland to send the United States troops to Chicago to aid the managers of the combined railroads then seeking to crush their employes, and against the protest of the then Governor of Illinois and the Mayor of Chicago.

This is the SAME RICHARD OLNEY who, while Attorney-General of the United States, dealing with the railroads, kept a retainer of ten thousand dollars a year from the Boston & Maine from the time he entered Cleveland's Cabinet as Attorney-General until he left the office.

Yet President Wilson continues to offer him the highest public offices and some of our newspapers affect to feel that these offers are an honor to Massachusetts.

Mr. Olney is a man of advanced years who has held high public places, and the AMERICAN would not call attention to his derelictions if his years and his office did not give him a public credit which he is constantly using against the public interest.

Henry M. Whitney, then on that same board of directors, was the gentleman whom the AMERICAN advised the Democratic party not to nominate for Governor several years ago, and whom the AMERICAN prevented from being nominated the first year of his candidacy. The next year, in one of these periodical lapses of responsibility and honor which have so seriously shaken public confidence in the Democratic party, he became the Democratic candidate for Governor. The AMERICAN opposed him to the polls, and he received the smallest vote given a Democratic candidate for Governor in thirty years. Under his leadership, the Democratic party fell to the third party in the State, and the candidate of the Independence League, which the AMERICAN supported against Mr. Whitney, received more votes than Mr. Whitney, the Democratic nominee.

CHAPTER LXIV.

CARYL MARVIN'S letter to her employer was brought to him as he sat at his 8 o'clock breakfast. He read it carelessly. He was not annoyed that his stenographer was not coming to him today. In fact he did not care to see her just now.

Of course he was sorry she was not well, he told himself; then he forgot her in the thoughts that had filled his mind ever since yesterday. They were all of Julia Marvin, his love of her, his pity for her, his desire to protect her and make her his wife. Over and over he asked himself the question—Why not tell her all this? Why not ask her to marry him?

He appreciated that he had not known Julia long, but he had known her long enough to love her. And she did not know him well—but he would tell her anything about himself that she wished to ask. He had fallen far short of the ideal man he wished to become to be worthy of her, but he thanked heaven that he had at least a decent and clean record.

Now that he had the morning to himself, why not write to Julia before he began work—although he knew that he would not be able to fix his mind on his work until he had learned his fate? Well, then, work must wait!

It took him a long time to write his letter. Late in the afternoon, in her own room, Julia read it and re-read it. She was alone. When she had started to work that morning Caryl—not yet out of bed—had told her not to worry if she was not at home early.

"John Redfield has invited me to dinner and to a concert afterward," she explained drowsily. "So don't expect me until you see me. I did not sleep much last night, and I don't want to talk now. Let me get another nap, please, Judy."

"All right, dear. Good-by," Julia said softly, bending over to kiss her.

"Good-by," was the sleepy response.

So, when the older girl came home from work she was not surprised to find the room empty. For a while she was glad of her solitariness as it gave her an opportunity to think over all that Kelley Delaine had written.

She had thought of nothing else all the evening. Her heart told her what to answer, but she wished to consider all sides of the question. This she had done when she seated herself at the table at which Caryl had sat twenty-four hours earlier to write her letter to the same man that Julia was now writing to. Julia's note was as brief as Caryl's had been.

"I believe you implicitly," she wrote. "It would be foolish and wicked were I to pretend now that I do not care for you. But I am not clever or well-educated, and am only a poor working girl—and you are all the things that I am not. Still you tell me to reply just what my heart dictates, and to think of nothing else. If I obey you in this matter, my answer must be 'Yes.'"

Then she, too, went to the street corner and posted her letter, and, returning, was too wide awake to think of sleep. Seating herself under the gas jet, she tried to read.

* * *

Kelley Delaine dined at a restaurant that evening, and it was 9 o'clock when he returned to his rooms. On his desk lay a letter in a handwriting which he recognized as his stenographer's. What could she be writing to him about he wondered. Was it to say that her cold would prevent her coming tomorrow?

He tore open the envelope indifferently, his mind on the sister of the girl whose epistle he held. Then, as his eyes took in the meaning of the written words, he started violently. The sentences before him had been written hurriedly, but they stared at him with vicious meaning.

> When you get this, Caryl had written, please notify my sister that I have gone away to be married. I cannot stand being spied at and interfered with.
>
> I love the man I am going with. I am tired of work, tired of the kind of life I have had to live. Indeed I am tired of everybody except this man.
>
> Julia will not miss me if she has you. That is why I'm sending this to you. She won't feel badly if you tell her about my plans. CARYL MARVIN.

The petty spite contained in the words, the bitter resentment, did not so much as touch the man to whom they were addressed. Instead, his one emotion was a great sense of pity for the woman he loved, who was even now waiting at home for her little sister. How could he lessen this blow for her, how could he spare her a night of agonized anxiety?

There was no telephone in Mrs. Halloran's lodging house. He could not go there at this time in the evening and call on her without exciting disagreeable comment. There was but one course left him. He would telegraph a quiet message. Then, tomorrow, he would see Julia and tell her the truth.

Thus it came about that, as Julia Marvin sat reading, Mrs. Halloran's agitated knock prefaced her hurried entrance into her lodger's room. She held a yellow envelope at arm's length.

"Sure, dear," she said gaspingly, "I hope it don't carry no bad news!"

Julia hastily tore open the envelope, imaginings of her father's possible illness or death rushing upon her. She read the message twice before she spoke.

"That's all right, Mrs. Halloran," she said then. "It's only a message from a friend of my sister's and mine."

When she was alone again she repeated the words over to herself in perplexity.

> Do not worry at your sister's absence over night. I will explain it when I see you tomorrow at 6 o'clock in the little park. KELLEY DELAINE.

It was characteristic of Julia's faith in the man she had learned to love that no doubt as to his fair-dealing penetrated her mind.

"I will try to do as he says," she muttered, "and not worry—but where is Caryl? Perhaps, after all, Dora Redfield decided not to leave town until tomorrow, and Caryl is staying with her."

With which solution of the problem Julia Marvin tried to be content.

Two Kinds of Mother Love

Many a Woman Blights Her Children's Lives Because She Wants Them Near Her—Others Efface Themselves for Children's Sake

By DOROTHY DIX

DO you remember Frank Stockton's whimsical story, "The Lady or the Tiger?" and the dilemma of the jealous princess whose lover had to open one of two gates, behind one of which was a famished tiger, and behind the other a beautiful woman he had to marry, and the princess was to give him a secret signal of which gate to choose?

A problem in real life, just as poignant and as hard to decide as the Lady or the Tiger, is furnished by the case of Mrs. Jagendorf, who is called upon to choose between her mother love and the welfare of her child.

Mrs. Jagendorf is a poor woman of humble station in life, who, having more little mouths to feed and more babies to look after than she could manage, in a moment of desperation gave the littlest baby and the one that cried the most to a woman, of whom she knew nothing, to take care of. As there was no money forthcoming for the baby's keep the woman got tired of it and left it in a doorway, from which it was rescued and sent to a foundling asylum, and from there, so strange are the turns of the wheel of fate, the infant was adopted by a wealthy family and taken out West to live.

It appears that outraged mother love at last woke up in Mrs. Jagendorf's breast, and, after having given her baby away to a casual stranger she met in the street, she began to pine for the lost child, and to seek it through all of the institutions of the city.

At last her search has been rewarded in so far that the child has been traced, and its whereabouts and well being established. It has been adopted by a family of wealth, education and fine social standing. It bears their name and is loved and cherished in every respect as if it were their own child, and it will be given every advantage of education and association. It will have every chance in life, and if left alone it will never know that its foster parents are not its real parents.

But this poor mother demands her child, and has appealed to the law to restore it to her, although she knows perfectly well that she sacrifices the child in doing so.

She will take the child from a luxurious home to a bare and poor one; she will drag it down to a lower station in life; she will deprive it of the advantages of education, and the start in life that cut off so many weary years of struggles; she will give it toil for ease, want for plenty, shabby clothes for good ones, and all just to gratify her own maternal instinct.

It is an interesting situation. What would you do if the case was your own? Would you love your child so passionately that you would take it back at any cost to the child, or would you be capable of the sublime unselfishness of mother love that would enable you to efface yourself completely from the child's life, if it was for that child's good?

If you were desperately poor and knew that your child was destined to become a pitiful, stunted little child slave if you kept it, would you be heroic enough to give it to those who could care for it and give it the opportunity for health and life that you could not? If you were unfortunately placed in an evil environment so that your child's association would be contaminating, would you have the courage to send it away from you into a purer atmosphere, although by so doing you were as much parted from it as you would be by death? Or would you offer up your child on the altar of your mother love, and keep it in your arms, no matter what the consequences to the child.

Sometimes a woman loves her child well enough to stand aside for its good. A notable case is that of young Ziegler, whose parents gave him to the wealthy baking powder manufacturer for adoption, and I, myself, know of a case where a woman who lives in the red light district of a city sent her little girl away before she was old enough to understand the sort of a life her mother led. This woman worships her child, but she has had the child taught that her mother is dead. Twice every year she goes and feasts her eyes upon the girl, who is now grown, but she never speaks to her, and the little convent bred maiden will never know who is the tall, sad faced stranger she passes on the street, or sits near sometimes in a restaurant or theatre.

It's a tragic and pitiful tale of mother love, isn't it, but can anyone dispute that this woman is doing the right thing by the girl?

It seems to me that in any conflict between mother love and the child's good, the mother should efface herself. Her duty is to the child no matter how it wrenches her heart to perform it. She has thrust life, unasked upon the child. It is a hard gift, at best, and if she can make the burden of it any easier, give the child better opportunities, or open wider doors to it, she is criminally selfish if she refused to do so.

Her thought should always be for the child, not herself. Unfortunately this is not always the case. Mother love is not invariably altruistic. Frequently it is the most selfish passion on earth.

Many a woman blights her children's lives because she loves them so much that she cannot bear to be parted from them, and refuses to let them go where fortune beckons them. We all know mothers who have kept talented boys, with the ability to do big things in them, tied down to drudgery, without hope, in a village store, because they went into hysterics every time the boys spoke about going away from home. We have known mothers whose love was so selfish it turned their daughters into household drudges rather than let them leave home to follow careers full of profit and congeniality.

And we've all known mothers whose love turned into a rankling jealousy that made them keep their children from marrying if they could, and when they couldn't, inspired them to interfere between husbands and wives until they wrecked their children's homes.

There are two kinds of mother love. The selfish and the unselfish. Which have you? And what would you do if you were called upon to decide between having your child with you, and by parting from it give it a thousand advantages and chances in life that you could never offer it?

One Universal Language

By EDGAR LUCIEN LARKIN

Q. "WILL there ever be one universal language?"

A. This is indeed an important question. Commerce is the great civilizer of mankind. Efficiency is the watchword of commerce, and least cost a fundamental. Now when the wireless telephone is in hourly use between all of the civilized races of the earth, and of races not now, but to become civilized, then the two basic ideas—efficiency and least cost—will rise into world importance as never before.

Wireless aerials will rise by millions in all parts of the world, to remote places, where commerce extends. Then efficiency at once dictates that the employment of thousands of interpreters must be dispensed with and one common language be substituted.

The burden of expense will completely overthrow least cost. We will soon talk to Europe; goods will be ordered, merchants will be in communication the day long, and the expense of interpretation will become intolerable. Then it will be cheaper to have one language. Therefore this one speech must come. And all can see that the one world language must be the English.
